Solar Orbit Next

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP)—The United States plans next week to launch the world's first orbiting solar observatory to probe mysteries of the sun and how its rays affect the earth.

The satellite, nicknamed Oao, may provide man with his first undistorted study of the sun.

The aim is to send Oao whirling in an orbit 350 miles above the earth. At that altitude the instruments aboard will make solar studies uncluttered by the blanketing veil of the earth's atmosphere.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the 440-pound satellite is the first of several such observatories scientists plan to send aloft for at least the next 11 years.

OAO PROCESSION

The space agency said a procession of Oao satellites could help answer such questions as how the sun controls the upper atmosphere, the origin and history of the solar system and the structure and evolution of the stars and galaxies.

PAUL HELLYER
... laughing-stock

A-Arms Policy 'Joke'

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has become the "laughing stock of the world" because of government indecision on nuclear warheads for its weapon systems, Liberal defence critic Paul Hellyer said in the Commons Wednesday.

He said it is becoming increasingly urgent that a decision be reached soon "one way or another."

FRUSTRATING

The indecision on nuclear weapons was "extremely frustrating" and "altogether incomprehensible" to Canada's allies. "We are spending a lot of money for a weapon system which are operational now except for the fact that they are untested and we are continuing to spend hundreds of millions of dollars for further weapon systems which are in the same category," he said during the House Speech debate.

ATTITUDE ATTACKED

Pressed for his view, Mr. Hellyer said: "I think a decision should be made one way or another." He did not say which decision he favored.

Mr. Hellyer also attacked the government for taking a "negative attitude" on Britain's negotiations for membership in the European Common Market.

'LIKE TACTICS'

Mr. Hellyer said that Finance Minister Fleming had accused the Liberals of using the "big lie" tactic and misrepresenting the Canadian position put forward at the Commonwealth conference in Ghana last September, where Britain's move toward the Common Market was discussed.

'UNANIMOUS'

Yet Mr. Fleming himself, after the Commonwealth conference, had emphasized to British journalists that Commonwealth countries had been unanimous in their condemnation of the British move.

Space Talks Hoped

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told Soviet Premier Khrushchev Wednesday night he hopes U.S. and Soviet representatives can meet "at a very early date" to discuss practical co-operation in the field of space.

In a brief, cordial reply to Khrushchev's earlier message congratulating the United States on orbiting a man in space, Kennedy said the United States will come up with "new and concrete proposals for immediate projects of common action."

POOL RENOVATIONS

Khrushchev had suggested that the two countries pool resources to explore outer space in order to benefit mankind.

At his press conference a few hours before the U.S. reply was made public, Kennedy called Khrushchev's proposal, one resembling a program Kennedy himself had advocated previously, an encouraging sign.

Searing Attack On Socreds Brings Uproar

Macfarlane Keeps Bennett Hopping

By ALEC MERRIMAN

If noise, interruptions and rudeness meant anything, Socreds in the legislature yesterday didn't want to hear Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane's analysis of the government's debt position.

Mr. Macfarlane had members jumping up and down in their seats, with Premier Bennett leading the show. Continually the premier rose to Mr. Macfarlane's bait, protested, attempted to turn the direction of the speech, and at one time even tried to claim the floor to make a speech himself.

At another point Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz threatened to name (suspend) Mr. Macfarlane for his refusal to unconditionally withdraw charges of "half truths."

Mr. Macfarlane, who with his colleague Gordon Gibson (L—North Vancouver), shares the distinction of being the most able to rattle the premier, charged that Mines Minister Kiernan and Education Minister Peterson had told half truths about the B.C. debt picture.

Premier Bennett jumped to his feet. "Mr. Speaker, He cannot accuse another member of making half truths," the premier objected.

Snowdrift Snarls Apologetic Thief

TORONTO (UPI)—A bank robber did everything but place himself in handcuffs yesterday following a holdup at a Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch.

Minutes after the $2,500 stickup, the getaway car got stuck in a snowbank two blocks from the scene and the suspect was arrested while attempting to untangle himself from his car.

Leonard Fraser, 25, of London, Ont., was charged with armed robbery.

Accountant Ante Pirk said the suspect had told him he was unemployed and had wandered around all morning wondering what to do. He said the suspect apologized several times and said the gun was only a toy.

Secret Army Fights in Open

ALGIERS (Reuters)—French army troops clashed only in field combat with members of the right-wing Secret Army Organization for the first time Wednesday as continuing violence took 19 lives and left 34 wounded.

The troops captured a 13-man secret army field unit after a brief exchange of gunfire.

Army sources said the clash occurred at a farm house near Tipasa, 40 miles west of Algiers. The secret army unit was armed with 10 rifles and three sub-machine guns. It surrendered minutes after the gunfire broke out.

LAST MINUTE

Elsewhere in the troubled territory, French military authorities rushed last-minute preparations for a cease-fire.

Thousands of troops have been massed within a 50-mile radius of Algiers and Oran to intervene on two hours' notice.

PARIS — The French government Wednesday approved terms of a cease-fire and political agreement with the nationalist rebels in Algeria providing for the North African territory's eventual independence.

'Greatest Respect'

The Speaker asked Mr. Macfarlane to withdraw.

"Only on order of this House," said the Oak Bay Liberal.

"Disrespect of this House," said Attorney-General Bonner.

"I might as well be muzzled," snorted Mr. Macfarlane.

"Sit down. You are causing the trouble," shouted Tony Gargrave (NDP—CCF—MacKenzie) to the premier.

"The member has come so close to being named," cautioned Mr. Speaker Shantz to Macfarlane.

"I have the greatest respect for you and your duty. No disrespect is meant to you or your position," Mr. Macfarlane said to the speaker.

"He is weaseling," called out the red-faced premier.

"He called the member a weasel. He must withdraw," shouted Mr. Gargrave.

"If he had called the member a weasel, he would have had to withdraw, but I think he said weaseling," said the Speaker.

"In view of the source, I will not ask for a withdrawal," Mr. Macfarlane said.

At times it was hard to tell whether it was Mr. Macfarlane or the premier who was making the speech, but Mr. Macfarlane seemed to have things under control and appeared to be enjoying himself.

Mr. Macfarlane said he was speaking for Premier Bennett, as the premier is a constituent of his and the premier claimed the right to ask questions because Mr. Macfarlane was his member. The premier lives in Oak Bay.

Premier Accused

When the premier claimed the right to speak Mr. Macfarlane told him he had more than one Oak Bay constituent to speak for and that the premier could have his turn next week.

He accused the premier of running a "government by clique" . . . government by a favored few who share the premier's confidence . . . Most of the members of the cabinet don't even get in that clique.

"That is a complete falsehood. Every member of the cabinet knows it," said the premier jumping to his feet to the chorus of desk thumping from his benches and some cabinet members.

"We stand unalterably opposed to this continued attempt to hoodwink the people into believing that we are debt free," said Mr. Macfarlane.

Liabilities Soar

He said the debt (contingent liabilities) had risen from $28,000,000 in 1954 to $1,286,000,000 in 1961, some $771 a head.

"And they will be higher next year," said the premier jumping to his feet.

"Let the people of British Columbia remember that remark," said Mr. Macfarlane.

Premier Bennett accused the Liberal MLA of "making a personal attack on the premier."

Mr. Macfarlane warned that "before we make any more expenditures of a major nature, like the $800,000,000 for Peace River, we must face the facts of the liabilities we already have."

"You just want to tear down," muttered the premier.

He warned the premier that the party leaders are "full money" . . . And you'd better hope large holders of those bonds don't call them in all at once.

"They have confidence," replied the premier with a smile.

"We say to you, stop burning bonds and face reality. The people want the facts. Not charged.

fantasy. They want factman-ship not showmanship."

Mr. Macfarlane caused a storm when he demanded that the premier tell where he has a market for Peace River power.

"Were you ever up to the Peace River to see for yourself?" asked the premier.

"Is there a market? . . . Is there a market? . . . Is there a market?" demanded Mr. Macfarlane with his flat clenched.

The only answer he got from the premier was: "He hasn't even been up there. . . He hasn't even been up there."

"We stand unalterably opposed to this continued attempt to hoodwink the people into believing that we are debt free," said Mr. Macfarlane.

"You couldn't understand them," replied Premier Bennett.

"The whole Columbia controversy is a disgrace . . . a pathetic performance by both governments involved. We are fast becoming the laughing stock of the whole western world in relation to this fiasco," Mr. Macfarlane charged.

'You Son of a Gun' Bennett Taunted

By PETER BRUTON

Legislative proceedings were shattered yesterday when unemployed workers shouted down to Premier Bennett to "come outside and meet us—you son of a gun."

Premier Bennett ignored the challenge and continued to read a copy of the B.C. Government News.

The disturbances climaxed the march of 500 unemployed, waving placards and chanting "We want jobs," on the legislative buildings.

Cost of the demonstration was $4,000.

Bonner Angry

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, his voice shaking with anger, also announced he was prepared to introduce a motion that "strangers are present"—a move that would automatically lead to the clearing of all galleries.

But the government obviously did not want to be placed in a position of having forcibly removed the demonstrators.

Katanga

UN Unit Poised For Clash

ELISABETHVILLE (AP)—Troops of the Katanga provincial army were reported Wednesday to have advanced within 12 miles of Albertville, and the United Nations garrison there was standing by at battle stations.

The Katanga gendarmes have thrust toward the North Katanga capital from Kongoilo which they captured from mutinous Congolese troops Saturday.

The advancing Katangans are believed to be about 1,500 strong. According to radio messages received in this provincial capital they are poised ready to move into Albertville.

Brigade Would Get Warheads in Hour

OTTAWA (CP)—Nuclear warheads can be supplied in emergency to the Canadian Infantry Brigade group in West Germany in little more than an hour, competent sources disclosed Wednesday.

And in event of Russian nuclear attack, they could be used by the brigade whether or not any agreement between Canada and the United States for their control were in existence, other reliable sources said.

The same situation will apply in the RCAF air division overseas when it is equipped with the new CF-104 low-level jet bomber. The first CF-104 squadron is scheduled to leave for Europe in November.

The 6,500-man motorized brigade group in Europe includes a battery—four launchers—of Honest John artillery rockets. The American Honest John was developed to carry a nuclear warhead.

Defence Minister Harkness has informed the Commons that nuclear storage dumps are being built as part of a NATO program in Western Europe. Some of these dumps are handy to Canadian Army and Air Force bases in West Germany.

WOULD SUPPLY

Sources said that if nuclear war broke out in Europe, NATO would supply all forces under its command capable of firing nuclear weapons with the required nuclear warheads. Any other course in an emergency would be unthinkable, they said.

Hero's Welcome Awaits Astronaut

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States made plans Wednesday for a rousing two-stage welcome to its greatest air hero since Lindbergh.

1. President Kennedy will escort here for a grand reunion Friday the family of John H. Glenn Jr., who made the first U.S. orbital space flight Tuesday.

2. Washington will stage a monster reception and parade for Glenn Monday.

Glenn was reported in shape for the big reception.

At Grand Turk Island in the British Bahamas, Glenn is undergoing a post-flight physical examination and telling scientists the story of his four-hour, 56-minute triple flight around the world.

Every report from Grand Turk indicates Glenn is in fine shape and suffered no ill-effects from his great adventure in an earth orbit which varied in altitude from 100 to 160 miles at speeds of 17,500 miles an hour.

Kennedy invited Glenn's family to ride to Florida today with him aboard the presidential jet plane.

Those coming include: Glenn's wife and two children, David 16, and Lynn, 14; the astronaut's parents, Mr. and Mrs.

John H. Glenn, Sr., and his parents-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Casper.

Friday morning, Glenn will fly here from Grand Turk for the reunion with his family.

The president will present to Glenn the Distinguished Service Medal of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Monday morning, Kennedy will take Glenn back with him to Washington where the fets will include a reception and a parade.

Glenn's wife, her parents and the children now are at their Arlington, Va., home, while the astronaut's parents are at their home in New Concord, Ohio.

The United States has not had a peacetime hero such as Glenn since Charles A. Lindbergh flew non-stop from New York to Paris in 33½ hours on May 21, 1927.

Labor Loses

Malta Vote Unfair —Mintoff

VALLETTA, Malta (Reuters)—Labor party leader Don Mintoff Wednesday night conceded defeat in Malta's general election. He charged that the vote was "the most unfair in the history of the island" because of Roman Catholic Church intervention.

As first results were announced in the polling that ended Monday, observers familiar with Malta's complicated proportional representation system said the nationalists of former premier George Borg Olivier seemed certain to win 24 to 26 seats in the colony's 50-seat assembly.

Mintoff's Labor party was expected to have a minimum of 18 seats.

In the last Maltese election in 1955, Mintoff's group had 23 seats and the nationalists 17 in a 40-seat assembly. Mintoff's government resigned in 1958 in a demand for more financial aid from England.

Man First Freed

Third Trial Rules Death

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters)—A man freed of a murder conviction because of a legal infringement was sentenced to death yesterday at his third trial on charges of killing his wife.

The convicted murderer, Duncan Moodie, 27, is the first person in South Africa ever to be sentenced to death twice after separate trials.

Moodie was found guilty of murdering his wife Anita, 21, in Klerksdorp Aug. 21, 1960.

He was first sentenced to death last April at Klerksdorp. On Sept. 29 last year his appeal against the conviction and sentence succeeded because of a legal infringement—a deputy sheriff of the court had been in the jury room at Klerksdorp during the jury's deliberations.

Moodie was freed but was re-arrested the same day. He was again brought to trial, this time at Pretoria, where last November the court accepted his plea that he had already been acquitted of the charge.

Last December the state successfully appealed against this decision on the grounds that the first trial had been void. Moodie disappeared. Police arrested him after a nine-day search and his third trial began Feb. 12.

Moodie's lawyer said a new appeal is being considered.

Now Found Guilty

New Dominican Crisis Follows Arson Attacks

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI)—The government ordered a state of emergency yesterday and began a roundup of political agitators it charged with trying to block general elections.

The surprise decree—first sign of internal political upheaval since January—followed a rash of apparently incendiary fires in cane fields surrounding this capital city. At least 14 blazes were reported yesterday and the crop loss was estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Rejected Rise Now Accepted

LONDON (Reuters)—British rail union leaders yesterday accepted a three-percent pay rise for 420,000 workers that they had rejected two weeks ago.

The decree was issued by the council of state, comprised of civilians and military officers serving as a provisional regime pending general elections.

Council president Rafael Bonnelly last night defended the decree—comparable to martial law—and blamed the trouble on a combination of right-wing Trujillo supporters and Communists.

SCHOOLS INVADED

Bonnelly listed other recent public disturbances, including mobs invading schools, public works employees rioting when their pay was delayed one day, and a ruckus at a courtroom during a hearing for an accused Trujillo henchman.

Deportation of political undesirables was authorized by the decree. At least five leftist leaders had been arrested and police were seeking others.

Kennedy 'Clears' Powers

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said today there is no evidence that U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers failed to carry out the terms of his contract with the United States government.

Kennedy told his press conference that a board of inquiry will complete by the middle of next week its investigation of the question. When that inquiry is completed, Kennedy said Powers will be available for questioning by members of Congress and by reporters.

Cities Stood Out 100 Miles Below

GRAND TURK ISLAND, Bahamas (UPI)—Astronaut John Glenn reported yesterday that he was able to detect cities on the earth 100 to 160 miles below his spacecraft during Tuesday's flight.

His report, made to scientists here, tended to corroborate sightings reported by Soviet spacemen Yuri Gagarin and Gherman Titov.

He saw the lights of Perth, Australia, and spotted El Centro, a city east of San Diego, which he passed over in daytime. He was able to pick out irrigating ditches and fields at El Centro because they stood out in contrast against the desert background.

"Now," he was quoted as saying, "I can understand how Gagarin could report seeing plowed fields."

Gagarin flew once around the earth in orbit last April 12. His report of sighting plowed fields was skeptically received in some quarters.

Glenn also saw a strange vision reported by Titov, who soared 17 times around the globe last Aug. 6-7. What Glenn saw was a bright band of orange and blue light above the horizon at sunset. He said the band appeared to persist for a considerable period after the sun went down.

Sweepstakes

AS PART of a dominion-wide survey being conducted by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, members of the Victoria Chamber have been requested to record individually whether or not they favor the introduction of legalized sweepstakes.

Unquestionably the opinions of the members polled will be just as widely divided over the issue as they have been among the general public during the past quarter of a century. The proposition, nevertheless, is one that calls for serious consideration and no decision—either for or against—should be reached until careful study has been given to all its moral and practical aspects.

As a guide to such a study the Canadian Chamber has prepared a brief memorandum which lists fairly the pros and cons of the question (see page 5). True, much more can be said in support of both sides, but in an abbreviated form the memorandum contains the main basic arguments.

The chamber's action has drawn one unwarranted and fallacious attack on the proposal, in which the words of Mr. Thomas Dewey, New York's famous racket-buster, are being used to persuade chamber members to reject any thoughts they may have of approaching the question with an open mind.

Here are Mr. Dewey's words as they have been quoted and held up as an example of what Victoria business men should think: "The entire history of legalized gambling in this country (United States) and abroad shows that it has brought nothing but poverty, crime and corruption, demoralization of moral and ethical standards, and ultimately, a lower living standard and misery for the people."

If Mr. Dewey's words are to be accepted at face value it must therefore be assumed that all countries which have legalized sweepstakes are populated by miserable people, bereft of moral and ethical standards and suffering from poverty, crime and corruption.

This, of course, is absolute nonsense as proven by the fact that such countries as Sweden, Switzerland, Austria, Ireland and France are numbered among those nations which have established legal lotteries.

Mr. Dewey may have become somewhat of an oracle in his own country, but his thoughts on these matters can hardly be allowed to color the views of Canadians. The question before the members of the Chamber of Commerce should be considered on its merits as applicable to Canada—not on the pronouncement two decades ago of an American politician.

Happy But Calm

A NOTICEABLE feature of American reaction to Colonel Glenn's triple orbital flight was the restraint with which it was viewed in official circles. There was pride and delight in this spectacular technical and human achievement, but no undue self-esteem.

Instead, from President Kennedy downwards, there was a realistic appraisal of the relative progress of the U.S. space program.

Colonel Glenn's flight put America alongside Soviet Russia in that it duplicated the sending of a manned vehicle in orbit round the earth, but Russia is still some months ahead in this particular aspect of space development. The Glenn feat tripled the first orbital attempt by Soviet astronaut Gagarin but it did not equal the second Soviet flight of 17 orbits by spaceman Titov. And it will be the end of this year at least before the U.S. can match this latter achievement.

In the meantime of course Russia is probably planning even more ambitious flights on a scale presently beyond American capacity.

It was in this perspective that authorities across the line assessed the successful orbit journey of Colonel Glenn, thankfully and in admiration of his courage but calmly in relation to the overall space picture.

All America and the West generally are heartened of course by the Glenn success and the technical evidence that warrants confidence in future flights. It is an encouraging spur to the greater efforts America will make in order, as Mr. Kennedy said, that in space flight the U.S. will become second to none.

Reopen the Door

THE DOOR has been shut against any form of Greater Victoria amalgamation study at this time. It could, and should, be opened again. Every citizen interested in the progress and well-being of the community in which he has a stake surely will be disappointed if it is not.

The blame for the closing of the door cannot be regarded otherwise than resting mainly on Mayor Wilson and city council, because of the mayor's early opposition to so-called "informal" study at the intermunicipal committee level, and now even to an informal approach to the question in the form of preparation by the city of a "prima facie case" for an amalgamation study, although the request for this seems to represent some sidestepping by Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Mayor Wilson and Reeve Murphy of Saanich erred at the start by seeking a study of a kind that Oak Bay and Esquimalt could not be expected to accept, a government-ordered study with aspects of compulsion most disagreeable to these two municipalities, and one which Reeve Murphy could not even persuade his own council to endorse.

Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils made a concession, however, and a gratifying one in view of their long-standing opposition to amalgamation. They said they were willing to enquire into the advantages and disadvantages of amalgamation co-operatively at the intermunicipal committee level.

Mayor Wilson apparently fears that the results of such a gathering and examination of the facts would be perverted by anti-unification participants in the study. One would expect, however, that instead of negatively rejecting such an enquiry for this reason he would instead take the positive steps of promoting an "informal" study as better than none and seeking safeguards such as the choice of an impartial chairman and the clear separation of facts and opinions in the findings.

It is not too late for Victoria city to reconsider its position on this matter. And all the circumstances suggest that it should.

Thinking Aloud

BY TOM TAYLOR

THE wheel it is that makes the world go round but it is suspense that keeps the human race ticking in high gear.

Another word for this, maybe, is curiosity. Curiosity has its bad points — it killed the cat, they say — but it can indicate keen interest in one's fellow men. Individuals are vastly concerned with others; with their doings, with what they say and what they look like.

It is this element that creates best-sellers and keeps people glued to television screens. The stories put them in suspense, a nervous but exhilarating experience. They are consumed with it until the full story has been unfolded.

In all human events the story is "how did it end?" The storyteller is thus always sure of an audience.

John Glenn wasn't telling a story on Tuesday, although he added his quota to the tale by his spoken remarks as he circled the globe, but his space flight was a story that told itself.

And with mounting suspense. This was why millions of people hung eagerly to the news media all through his epochal three trips around the earth.

In our office, for instance, four or five of us were grouped around a small black box four inches by two. It seemed altogether an incongruous object with which to connect with a man shut in a capsule 100 miles high in space.

Yet from it came the clear voice of the astronaut and the tracking record of this twentieth century miracle, the projection of man into the solar reaches and his safe return.

Three hours earlier, while shaving, yours truly had listened to Colonel Glenn in the earlier phase of his flight, also by radio, and it was then he was reaffirmed in his belief that all modern wonders thus transcendence of sound over vast distances is the greatest of them all.

Nothing before or since has matched the magic of radio transmission; the fact for instance that one can carry an unattached box in one's hand while walking a city street or country lane, and listen in to happenings taking place thousands of miles away.

And all merely by the flick of a switch.

Usage makes one blasé about mechanical things but this, the father of invisible communication, still holds first place. Nothing before or since has matched its magic.

And it was because of radio connection that countless people the world over were held in the grip of suspense on Tuesday morning.

Our group, for example, were on tenterhooks, for a brave man was ending his orbital journey and about to land in the sea. Would his vehicle be spotted in time? Would he be picked up safely? What if the capsule sank or otherwise misbehaved itself?

Would this majestic venture fail at the last moment, on the brink of complete success?

No wonder there were nervous tremors, for this was an odyssey to rank with the Greek epics. It was a story for the gods, and in the fairness of equities it demanded a happy ending.

Europe — New World Power

A Giant Is Born

By CHARLES NICHOLS
(First Article in a Series of Seven)

A NEW great power is taking shape on the map of the world.

Its foundations have been sturdily built. Its economic structure is visible and impressive; its political machinery is installed and has begun to operate.

Its boundaries can be traced sharply in the complex of Western Europe.

Its population of 170 million is almost as large as that of the United States—more than three times that of the United Kingdom. Before the structure is complete, it will surpass the United States in numbers, output, ship-building, electrical equipment and agricultural production.

Its economy is dynamic and expanding.

It has been too busy building to enjoy the luxury of contemplating anthems and slogans. It is without a palace or a figurehead, without a banner. And yet it is probably the most historically significant reality of the 20th century. It calls itself today the European Community. It is a modest name. It fits it well.

It has been built on the battlefields of the modern world's greatest wars. It has risen out of the ashes and agonies of the rivalries and slaughters of the states that now comprise its whole.

It has changed the whole balance of European political equilibrium—from the tense balance of power to the integration of all these in a common country with common political and economic aims.

The Packback

Glory of Office

By GREGORY CLARK

A RECENT newswatch showed the arrival of Krishna Menon in New York for the UN, during which the gentleman from India lost his temper and made a show of himself. One of the United States newspapermen asked him if he considered the action of India with regard to Goa as an invasion; and when Menon said he did not, the newspaperman naturally enquired what he did call it.

Menon turned angrily on the newspaperman with a petulant air curiously reminiscent of a spoiled child, and demanded: "What do you think you are?"

In the minds of thousands or tens of thousands of newswatchers, the instant response must have been: Who does Menon think he is?

What a blessing, for them, that our great men of the moment are spared their own biographies. Do our political rulers, savoring and ingesting the glory of power, ever get the creeps when they read a look at the posthumous biographies of their predecessors?

A most amusing parlor game—a sort of What Was His Line?—consists of getting lists of cabinet provincial ministers, as well as federal, two governments back, and seeing who remembers.

The result is shocking, Mr. Menon.

Washington Calling

Temporary Home

By MARQUE CHILDS

NO self-respecting cartoonist could stay in business for a week if he were deprived of the stock figure labeled PEACE. From Daumier to Low, Herblock to Maudlin, PEACE has been a thin, bearded creature harried from one shelter to another by the gods of war.

But now the unfortunate girl has at least a temporary home. The disarmament agency located in the U.S. State Department is hard at work putting together details of the proposal for beating swords into plowshares, which is presumably to be presented at the 15-nation disarmament conference in Geneva on March 14.

No one in this age of disillusion needs to be told that peace will not break out on March 30 or even on June 1 when the conferees under the terms of their mandate are due to report back to the United Nations. If Premier Khrushchev follows up current hints out of Moscow and persists in making the Geneva meeting a Communist-bloc summit, the whole thing will be merely another futile propaganda exercise. What is somewhat encouraging is that the disarmament agency is preparing not just for one conference but for the long haul.

The basic chart of American policy at Geneva is still President Kennedy's speech of last September 25 to the General Assembly. That was a broad outline of a plan for phased disarmament, with each stage covered by international control and inspection. In that speech the president quoted from the resolution of the neutral nations meeting at Belgrade endorsing "general, complete and strictly an internationally controlled disarmament."

Currently the task of the disarmament agency is to put specific terms on the generalities of the Kennedy speech. After this is done it must be co-ordinated with the views of the other four Western nations. British disarmament specialists have come from London to discuss the problem. A long and painstaking process, it sometimes seems that the more involved and circuitous it becomes the more likely it is that the whole affair will die of bureaucratic strangulation.

Regarding the level at which the Geneva talks begin they will start with East and West holding diametrically opposed points of view. The West says: We believe in complete and general disarmament which must be established stage by stage through the right of inspection of the military establishments of each side. The East says: We believe in complete and general disarmament and the inspection only of those weapons and forces which have been taken out of the military complex first in one stage and then another down to zero.

This does not mean that the conference is bound to come to nothing. The Soviets are capable of abruptly reversing positions that have appeared forever frozen. And this is a contingency for which the disarmament agency is prepared.

The unification of France and Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Italy into a single community, may well rein in importance with the fusion of the German states under Bonnmark, with the unification of Italy.

Like these events, it marks the end of rivalries in commerce and prestige and military power.

Integrated in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for its defence, intimately allied with the Atlantic Community historically and culturally, it already is emerging as a third force in world politics that so long has been talked about as a vague aspiration.

Instead of being a clutch of small nations, pushed into the category of third and fourth class powers by the march of history and the emergence of the new giants in Russia and Asia, it has become a collective power itself, rivaling the others.

Before the structure is even half-completed, other nations of Europe are seeking a place within its complex. When it is completed — probably within eight years — it should encompass all the territories that today are variously shaped on the patch-work map of Western Europe.

Its completion will change that map, change the pattern and currents of world trade, change the balance of world power.

That is the broad picture, the shape of things as they are today in a prospective vibrant and advancing Europe. Obstacles lie ahead. Some of them may slow the progress to realization of the concept behind it; but with the drive and energy behind the movement, the obstacles will have to be formidable indeed to stop it.

armament agency hopes to be fully prepared.

One thing this commission is determined to try to avert. That is to prevent the undoing of the disarmament effort—whether pointed up to this next conference or for the long term—by powerful interests that do not believe in disarmament, do not want it and will if they can prevent it from coming about.

The road out of the past is strewn with casualties. They testify to the peril of the disarmament negotiator who goes off in his innocence to a conference, leaving his rear unguarded. One was Harold Stassen who seemed to be making progress in the London talks in 1957 when he suddenly found himself shamed and gibed at as a figure of fun.

Another was James J. Wadsworth who persisted through the long punishing ordeal of the nuclear test negotiations at Geneva and at least twice came within shouting distance of an agreement. In Washington members of the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee, together with the committee staff which is, in effect, a part of the Atomic Energy Commission—Pentagon apparatus, did their all-to-effective best to frustrate Wadsworth.

This time the intention is that the head of the disarmament agency, William C. Foster, will not go teetering out on the end of a conference limb. In the first instance, if Secretary of State Dean Rusk heads the delegation going to Geneva, Foster will accompany him. But when the talks become protracted and Rusk leaves, it is probable that Foster will also return to Washington and the long-term concerns of the agency he directs. So many false starts have been made that to anyone is optimistic over the future of disarmament would be a wild exaggeration. The skeptical believe the same tired wheels are being set in motion again. Yet from almost everyone concerned there is evidence of a realization that the arms race is reaching such a pitch of intensity that this may be a now-or-never attempt.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

Feb. 22, 1962 ...

The greatest simultaneous air assault in history took place 17 years ago today—in 1945—when 7,090 bombers and fighters from Britain, Italy and Belgium attacked 100 German railway and communications hubs. Its air power was greater even than the D-Day assault at Normandy.

1879—Frank W. Woolworth opened the first of his dime stores, in Utica, N.Y.

1947—Figure-skating champion Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa was presented with a physical education gold medal by the French government in Paris.

Report From Ottawa

No Ifs or Buts

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

PUZZLING to many on Parliament Hill is the outcome of a public opinion test conducted in Stormont county by Carleton University journalism students. At most of the 300-odd homes visited, voters favored Canadian acquisition of nuclear arms with no ifs, ands or buts.

Stormont was selected for the experimental survey because of the fidelity with which it has reflected national trends in federal elections. The public leaning to nuclear arms, it is reported, cut across party lines.

PHYSICAL FITNESS: When Prime Minister Diefenbaker addressed the National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sports not long ago, he intimated that he would be receptive to recommendations designed to keep MPs and senators in trim. Ottawa is one of few world capitals lacking such facilities.

The National Council is, presumably, still mulling that one over. But the outlook isn't bright.

Obvious spot for a swimming pool and gymnasium would be in the West Block, now being renovated. There's no provision in present plans for any such facilities.

The renovated West Block will, however, contain a "reading and rest room" for the benefit of the MPs whose offices are located there.

From the Scriptures

In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathway thereof there is no death. —Proverbs, 12:28.

ELEVATION: Prime Minister Diefenbaker hasn't yet unveiled his legislative proposals for the reform of the Senate. Nevertheless, he'll be in a position to make some changes between new and election time.

The number of vacancies due to death and resignation—only one of the latter—has increased to nine. Three of these are in Ontario, two in Quebec and one each in Manitoba, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. The Liberals still outnumber the Conservatives by almost three to one in the Upper House.

PERMANENT: Finance Minister Donald M. Fleming is a family maverick. A 22-year-old uncle, Mr. David Fleming, disclosed in Peterborough a few days ago that the Fleming family had been solidly Liberal until Donald came along.

Donald's father was a staunch Qrit but his mother was a Tory. Mr. Fleming senior recalled, "The remained a Tory even though she married my brother."

EN AVANT: Quebec Conservatives insist that their prospects are much brighter in the next national election than outsiders seem to believe. They claim record crowds, especially at meetings in rural ridings where, they say, Premier Lesage and his government are weaker than in urban and suburban areas.

One senior organizer is convinced that every Quebec Conservative MP who has done the necessary spadework in his own riding will be re-elected.

Catch-All Bid

Commuter Tax Proposed In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council next week will debate a motion on ways to raise more taxes, including the possibility of a $5 to $10 annual poll tax on persons who commute from outlying municipalities to jobs in Vancouver.

Vancouver abandoned the poll tax in 1959.

Cuba Export Means 'Trouble'

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Senator David Croll said Wednesday the government is asking for trouble with the United States by continuing to export strategic goods to Cuba.

"I say that this business is creating friction with the United States," the Ontario senator said in the Senate during debate on a government bill to boost funds available for federal financing of capital goods exports to $300,000,000 from $200,000,000.

Senator Croll was interrupted several times by Conservative senators who asked him to describe in detail the policy he was talking about.

When the export credits measure was before the Commons last week, Trade Minister Hevesy denied that Canada is exporting strategic goods to Cuba. He said the government has adhered strictly to the NATO list of strategic goods whose shipment to Communist countries is banned.

Members Now Voting

Gambling Pros and Cons In National Chamber Poll

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce currently is conducting a national poll of its members on legalized sweepstakes under strict government supervision.

In a discussion by local directors, opinion appeared to be about evenly divided, and all Victoria members are now voting.

The pros and cons, brought out in recent debate, designed to guide members in voting, are listed below:

● Laws can be enforced only when they are based on general public acceptance. There is evidence that the public in general is in favor of legalizing lotteries as is shown by the public opinion polls which have indicated a growing majority of Canadians in favor of legalization over the years (the latest poll showed two-thirds of Canadians were in favor). In addition, a survey of readers conducted by a French language newspaper in Montreal showed: 89,482 people in favor, 149 against.

● Lotteries have been legal and operational in many countries for some years, even for decades. Among others the following countries permit lotteries or even organize lotteries: Ireland, Sweden, France, Australia, Germany, Switzerland, Mexico, Puerto Rico, and certain states of the U.S.A.

● A state-operated lottery or an appropriately taxed private lottery would provide a new source of revenue for such projects as hospitals, the care of underprivileged children, sports facilities, cultural centres, as well as for general charitable work. More than 250 hospitals have benefited from sweepstakes in Elara. Hospitals also benefit from state lotteries in Australia.

● Illegal gambling is already taking place in Canada without any of the potential benefits which close government control and/or organization could produce. Millions of dollars leave Canada annually for the U.K. and Elara to pay for Canadians' participation in sweepstakes and football pools. Under government control, this money would be kept in Canada for the benefit of the Canadian economy and its charitable organizations.

According to a recently published estimate by the post office department, Canadians contribute up to $25,000,000 per year to the Irish sweepstakes. In addition, an estimated 250,000 Canadians participate regularly in U.K. football pools. In 1959, the post office department opened 10,299 letters addressed to football pools in the U.K.

● If lotteries were legalized in Canada, it might well serve to attract foreign funds to this country. According to a recent report, purchasers of Irish sweepstakes tickets were from 150 different countries with a total revenue figure of many millions of dollars.

● Employment would be provided if sweepstakes were legalized in Canada. One U.K. football pool employs 20,000 workers and uses up 40,000,000 envelopes per month. Football pools in the U.K. have been described as the sixth largest industry.

● If the inherent human urge to gamble is not funnelled into legal channels, it will be satisfied illegally under the sponsorship of the criminal element in our society.

● Even though lotteries are regarded by some Canadians as immoral, this is not sufficient reason for their prohibition. Other activities are also regarded as immoral, but are not prohibited by law, for example, gambling on horse races at racetracks across Canada is legal and well patronized.

● In fields such as stock-market speculation and business ventures, risk is not condemned by Canadian law, in fact the Canadian economy has been largely built up by risk-takers who in many cases have taken chances with their investment money.

A catchall motion proposed by Alderman Halford Wilson Tuesday urged examination of the city's power to tax outsiders and if amendments to the charter would be necessary to:

1. Increase the business tax on breweries.

2. Impose a business tax on the provincial liquor control board stores and warehouses to be paid by the provincial government in the form of a grant.

BUILDING FEE

Alderman Marianne Linnell suggested council also investigate the possibility of a $5 fee for building and commercial development permits now issued free and collection of a $5 charge for immunization shots for overseas travel now given gratis by the city health department.

TAX REDUCTION

She also suggested there might be a 2 1/2 per cent surcharge on room rent in hotels and motels and possibly a $1 charge for each of 40,000 inspections of business and industrial premises carried out annually by fire wardens.

DON'T CONTRIBUTE

Alderman Wilson told council thousands of non-residents who don't own property in Vancouver come into the city every day to earn a living but contribute nothing toward Vancouver's operating expenses. He said his proposed poll tax could terminate it and when Greater Vancouver achieves a metropolitan form of government with a uniform taxation system.

Price of Progress

Organization Needed

Keep Outer Space Peaceful—John D

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker reiterated Wednesday that an international organization must be set up "before it is too late" to ensure that outer space is used for peaceful purposes.

He spoke in reply to a Commons question by Art Smith (PC—Calgary South) who asked for comment on Premier Khrushchev's proposal to President Kennedy for a pooling of American and Soviet space efforts.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that following Tuesday's triple orbit flight by U.S. astronaut Lt. Col. John Glenn and the previous orbital flights of the two Soviet astronauts, it was time to prevent the establishment in outer space of anything that would add to the fears of mankind.

The prime minister noted that he had previously made the proposal before the United Nations General Assembly. There had since been discussions on it.

$10,000 Bail Set for Sons

TRAIL (CP) — Bail of $10,000 each has been set for four Sons of Freedom Donkohor youths charged with illegal possession of explosives.

Three of the four are in hospital suffering from injuries sustained when a bomb exploded in their car at Kinross Friday. Harry Kootnikoff, 17, died in the explosion.

Monthly meeting of the Old Age Pensioners Organization, No. 55, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday at St. Mark's Anglican Church hall.

Growth, Pollution Outsized Problems

VANCOUVER (CP) — Problems of urban growth and pollution control have far outstripped the ability of Canadian municipalities to deal with them, the royal commission on health services was told Wednesday.

A submission by the Health Officers of British Columbia said there should be "national control" of urban expansion and the pollution of air, land and water.

AT ALL LEVELS

Such control would be exercised under regulations established "at all levels of government."

"Haphazard growth and growing pollution problems now affect whole areas and even regions," said the health officers group—composed of the directors of B.C.'s 17 health units; senior medical officers of metropolitan Vancouver and Victoria; the head of the preventive medicine department at the University of B.C. and the regional superintendent of the Indian Health Service.

PREVENT SLUMS

The regulations proposed should be "aimed at preventing the creation of slums and pollution of land, air and water rather than abating these problems when they have occurred."

Pensioners Meet

They told the seven-man commission.

The group also proposed that a greater share of the cost of health services and sanitary works at the local level be borne by the federal and provincial governments.

Control Urged

On another subject, the health officers called for a "clear, simple and realistic policy" — endorsed by all levels of government — with respect to emergency and survival procedures.

"This policy should be aimed at relieving the confusion and uncertainty at present detectable in the general population."

ADVICE ON HAZARDS

They also advocated increased facilities for the study, detection and provision of advice on radiation hazards, and review and extension as necessary of laws governing industrial use of ionizing radiation.

Tobacco Ads Labelled Threat to Youngsters

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tobacco companies were accused Wednesday of trying to build up their cigarette sales by campaigns directed at young people.

"The ever-growing subversion of our young people by tobacco advertisers and their employers is a rising threat to our national health," the Vancouver branch of the National Health Federation told the royal commission on health services.

At the University of British Columbia recently, five sample packs of cigarettes were distributed to students, said the association.

The association urged all forms of tobacco advertising be eliminated in Canada "as an urgently required health measure."

ULTRA-VITES

BRINGS THE PRICE OF VITAMINS AWAY DOWN

You'll be amazed at the savings
You'll be amazed at the formula

The Chart tells the Story

AT YOUR SUPERMARKET OR FOOD STORE NOW!

From infants to old folks, every one needs vitamins. Until now, high prices have made it almost impossible for most Canadian families to buy the proper vitamin formula for each member of the family. But these charts for Ultra-Vites! Four approved formulas, one for every age group in the family ... at about half of what you're probably paying.

Ultra-Vites is a superb adult formula of 10 vitamins and 11 minerals, but 10 weeks supply (72 tablets) is only $2.98.

Children's Ultra-Vites are fruit flavoured, gently coloured and have no bitter after-taste. Children love 'em ... and they get more from them because the daily dose is divided in two to allow better absorption by smaller bodies. 10 weeks supply, $2.98.

Tri-Vites and Poly-Vites are the two infant drop formulas that most doctors recommend. They come complete with dropper marked to show daily dosage. There's six months supply (at .3¢ per day) for just $2.98.

Decide here and now on the Ultra-Vite formula you need and start saving with Ultra-Vites next time you're in your food store.

THE CHART TELLS THE STORY

Right here, and on every package of Ultra-Vites, you can compare formula and price with your present brand (you can tell it by the price you're paying). Ultra-Vites offer a most complete vitamin-mineral formula ... 10 vitamins, 11 minerals ... at a price way below most other brands.

Warning to Others

Skipper Fined for Oily Wake

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capt. Shipping Act. Magistrate Len Christopher Zaharopoulos of the Greek freighter Aspis was fined $500 Wednesday for discharging oil from his ship just outside the city's harbor.

The fine is the maximum possible under the Canada Shipping Act.

Magistrate Len Christopher Zaharopoulos said he hoped it would be a deterrent to masters and owners of other ships not to foul the harbor here.

R. C. Bray, for the department of transport, said the ship laid down an oily wake three miles long when oil was pumped from her bilges as she was inbound Feb. 7.

Bray told the court B.C. Research Council tests showed the oil was identical to that found in the bilges of the Aspis.

Sea and Air Search For Submarine Fails

Sighting by a B.C. Airlines pilot of what appeared to be a submarine touched off a fruitless sea and air search in the vicinity of Nootka Island about 160 miles northwest of Victoria, it was disclosed here yesterday.

Rear Admiral E. W. Finch-Noyes said the destroyer escort Skeena had been ordered to return to Esquimalt following a "routine evaluation" of a report an unidentified submarine had been sighted off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Neptune aircraft from 407 Maritime Patrol Squadron based at Comox RCAF station and naval Tracker aircraft from VU-33 at Patricia Bay airport also took part in the operation.

Commercial pilot Alex Duch was on a routine B.C. Airlines flight from Port Alberni to Zeballos Tuesday when he spotted what he believed to be a surfaced submarine off Nootka Island.

It submerged, said Mr. Duch, when he was overhead.

It is known that many of the unidentified objects have turned out to be deadhead logs or whales.

Fatal Brawl Costs $300

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Raymond George Garbutt, 19, of Rocky Mountain House, Alta., Wednesday was convicted of manslaughter and fined $300 or one year in jail. The charge was laid following the death last August of Nelson Campbell Grant, 36, of Hanna, Alta., in a dance hall brawl.

Blood Stains Election

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Bloody clashes Wednesday marked the halfway point in India's general election as about 15,000,000 people voted in nine states.

Two persons were killed and 12 injured in a fight between supporters of Prime Minister Nehru's Congress party and the right-wing Jan Sangh party at Balampur in the neighboring state of Uttar Pradesh.

Curfew was imposed but voting was allowed to continue. Fifteen persons were injured, two seriously, when rival political processions clashed in the state Tuesday night.

Meanwhile, some 210,000,000 electors will have had a chance to vote when voting, which began last Friday, ends Sunday. First results will be known Sunday night.

The government says the election is the biggest anywhere in the world on the Western democratic pattern.

Nehru's Congress party is certain to win the election but may lose some seats to right-wing groups.

Considering Liberals?

Yes, Says Hazen Argue

OTTAWA (CP) — Hazen Argue rejected any idea Wednesday night of joining the Conservative or Social Credit parties but said his future lay only in affiliating with some political party.

(See also Pages 15, 16.)

Asked point-blank whether he was considering joining the Liberal party, he replied with an unqualified "yes."

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate banking and commerce committee approved without amendment Wednesday a bill extending pensions and other benefits under the Civilian War Pensions and Allowances Act. It had passed the Commons earlier.

Merchant marine seamen, firefighters and the Newfoundland Overseas Forestry Unit are included in the measure.

An informed source said earlier he is expected to announce today that he will join the Liberal party.

Mr. Argue, interviewed on the CBC weekly program Newsmagazine, said he deliberately withheld advance notice of his intention to resign from the New Democratic Party from T. C. Douglas, its national leader, until he announced it Sunday.

GAVE TWO REASONS

He did so for two reasons, because he thought the word should go first to the CCF-NDP executive in Assiniboia constituency, and because he did not trust Mr. Douglas to keep the confidence.

"I think this man is known to break confidences," he said.

"I have had this experience with him before."

Mr. Douglas, in an interview for Wednesday night's program which was recorded in Montreal Tuesday, said he had heard rumors of Mr. Argue's "dickering with the Liberal party," but did not believe them because Mr. Argue had given him personal assurances in public and in private as recently as a few days ago that the rumors were not true.

The NDP leader said he thought Mr. Argue was "aggravated at not having been elected leader of the party," and had begun negotiations with the Liberals shortly after last August's NDP founding convention.

Crushed Woodsman Flown to Hospital

CAMPBELL RIVER—A 28-year-old Campbell River logger was flown to hospital here by Island Airlines pilot Fred Lachapelle after an accident yesterday at Santiago Creek on Tahsis Inlet.

Logger Robert Hedstrom's right leg was severely crushed when he was caught between two logs.

Problem Going?

Officials of MacMillan, Blandell and Powell River Ltd. have promised mayors of Port Alberni and Alberni steps will be taken to minimize fly-ash and smoke problem from giant industrial complex which manufactures both pulp and lumber. (Margaret Treble photo)

Nanaimo Issue

Jobless Delaying School Scheme?

NANAIMO—A school trustee says the school construction program here could be lagging because unemployed men may not want to work.

The remark came from trustee R. Baugh-Allen of Wellington during arguments on the current state of maintenance and construction on Nanaimo schools.

STILL GOING ON

Trustee W. A. Lerch had criticized the engineering department because works budgeted for last year were still going on this year.

Trustee Lerch said he would like to see all works completed in the year they appear in the budget.

OPPOSITE VIEWS

The school district engineer said a lack of labor made the situation difficult. But Mr. Lerch replied there are many men in Nanaimo who could do with the work.

Said Mr. Baugh-Allen: "But do they want work, that's the question."

He contended this problem may be holding up the school program. Mr. Lerch disagreed.

Beating Probed

Toronto Police Rapped For Arresting Rabbi

TORONTO (CPI)—Metropolitan police were criticized Wednesday for arresting a rabbi and charging him with vagrancy.

Mr. Justice Dalton Wells, conducting an inquiry into the alleged beating of Rabbi Norbert Leiner, criticized police for arresting Rabbi Leiner even though the rabbi did not justify his presence on a city street.

"Your complaint said this man was loitering. This man was not loitering, he was proceeding down the street. Const. Ernest Sharp, one of the arresting officers, said he arrested Mr. Leiner because he had no money on his person and did not justify his presence on the street.

POLICE CHECK

"He was perfectly entitled to be there," said Mr. Justice Wells.

Mr. Leiner was arrested Jan. 26 in an area where police said they were checking on sexual sex offences.

Mr. Leiner said he was forced into a police cruiser—contrary to his religious convictions—and later was beaten at the police station.

AGAINST FAITH

The inquiry, which resumed Wednesday after being adjourned Feb. 10, was told the Jewish faith forbids ultra orthodox Jews riding in a vehicle during their sabbath—sundown Friday to sundown Saturday.

The hearing continues.

Handful Supports Council

A handful of members attending the regular meeting of the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers Association this week agreed to support Saanich council's decision regarding high-rise apartments.

As a result of "a number of applications" for high-rise blocks in the Cadboro Bay area, members decided to leave the matter to council and town planners.

More than 45 attended the meeting, a member said, "but only a handful were members of the association."

City Resident 48 Years

Victoria Press Superintendent Harold Palmer Dies at 62

Building superintendent for Victoria Press Ltd. for the last eight years, Harold James Palmer, 62, of 712 Transit, died yesterday in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mr. Palmer was born in London, England, Oct. 31, 1898, and had been a resident of Victoria for 48 years.

PIONEER FLIER

He enlisted in the Canadian army in the First World War, but transferred overseas to the Royal Flying Corps, of which he was one of the pioneer members and in which he served out the war.

In 1932 he joined the Victoria Times. He was in the circulation department of that paper until appointed Victoria Press building superintendent.

Mr. Palmer was a member of Victoria Columbia Lodge No. 1, A.F. & A.M.

Survivors include his widow, Eleanor M., at home; one daughter, Tuppy, at home; two sons, Ronald C. and Keith H., both in Victoria, and three grandchildren.

Canon H. J. Jones will conduct funeral services at 3:30 p.m. Friday at McCall's funeral home. Cremation will follow.

MacDonald View

'No Light from Westwood'

NANAIMO—Recreation Minister Westwood's speech in the legislature Tuesday "cast little or no more light on his department's plans for Newcastle Island in Nanaimo Harbor, than we have had already and that is little enough," Ald. Bus MacDonald said Wednesday.

He had received the support of council Monday in expressing dissatisfaction with programs made by the department of recreation in developing the island as a provincial park. Ald. MacDonald said he was disappointed no indication had been given in Mr. Westwood's speech as to just what would be done this year on the island.

"I'm sure the people of Nanaimo did not turn the island over to the provincial government as a political football," he added. "I feel access to the island is most important and the quickest way to provide access for automobiles and trailers this summer is by means of a ferry.

"A bridge, of course, is the only acceptable permanent solution and is essential if we are to get the maximum use from the island when development is complete."

Mayor Pete Maffeo is seeking a meeting with Mr. Westwood.

Hungry Sleeper Confesses

DUNCAN—Charged with breaking and entering and vagrancy, Adam Buchanan, no fixed address, pleaded guilty in police court yesterday and was remanded for sentence today. Police found him in a local coin laundry asleep under a table.

Buchanan admitted he had forced his way into the Reddi Kwik Restaurant to steal food. Court was told Buchanan did not touch the till containing some change. He said he did not have any money and he was hungry.

B.C. 'Police State' Rights Rally Told

About 85 persons attended a public rally at Holyrood House last night sponsored by the Victoria Fair Expropriations Committee which is pressing for a court hearing on the provincial government takeover of the B.C. Electric Company.

Robin Dunsmuir of Victoria spoke on human rights and the "rape of the B.C. Power Corporation." He said B.C. has now become "the most socialized government in the whole of Canada" and that British Columbians are no longer free.

'ADMIT IT'

During a question and answer period, he asked those attending the rally, "would you have given into Hitler in 1939? Do you want to give in to Bennett?" He later said,

"This is a police state and we might as well admit it."

Main speaker was Victoria lawyer Herbert Matthews, chairman of the local fair expropriations committee, who suggested people should pray for the Social Credit government because the government "can destroy for us our freedom in this country by enacting such outrageous things as they did in the Power Development Act."

He said of Premier Bennett's publication entitled "Why I took over the B.C. Electric," that people should note the "Big I" complex, the centralization of power in one man.

"Ladies and gentlemen, I wonder if 'Big I' is watching over us tonight? ... It is the 'Big I' complex that kills democracy," said Mr. Matthews.

He described Premier Bennett as "the sole shareholder of the B.C. Electric now" and said the premier wanted a company that would "develop the Peace River area to satisfy his dream of northern development."

Other speakers were James A. Clarke and Harry Gregson.

John Who?

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI)—

There are 100 men in this suburb of the U.S. capital who haven't heard about John Glenn's orbital flight.

They are the volunteers confined to a fallout shelter in a two-week survival test. The navy said it hadn't told them about the flight because it wanted to simulate nuclear disaster conditions as closely as possible.

Town Plans In Movies

Four films featuring town planning will be shown at meetings March 6 and 8 starting at 8 p.m. in the Victoria Public Library music room.

A redevelopment exhibit will be held at the library from March 5 to March 10.

Leafs Can Forget About Lead And Worry Now About Hawks

The Hustlers

Local boys didn't have chance when Mrs. M. J. Tamblin, 87, left, and Mrs. Edith Croft, 79, teamed up for pool tournament at senior citizens' home at Middlechurch, Man. Versatile Mrs. Croft also beat the men in last summer's horseshoe pitching tournament.—(CP Wirephoto.)

Views of Sport

By Red Smith

It may be that Mr. Sparse Grey Hackle is the kindest man in the world, and then again, maybe he is the meanest. He almost never forgets to send along a letter at the very time a guy needs a piece to travel on, yet what he writes is not necessarily calculated to send the guy away with mind at rest and heart full of "gemutlichkeit."

For example: "This is the time of year when I begin to think about fishing and you begin to think about going South to the baseball training camps. So it is natural that when I think of you and your compatriots in the sports-writing field, I do so in terms of the angler."

"Thus I am impressed with the way in which you, as a group, resemble the water insect which is the principal food of the trout and which we imitate with our artificial flies. (So far okay: He has only called us bugs, an acceptable if not flattering comparison.—Ed.)

Creature Eats All the Time

"The insect hatches from the egg reposing on the stream bottom as a sluggish, crawling worm, which the fisherman calls a nymph, but which in the newspaper world is called a copy boy. This static creature eats all the time and so grows bigger and bigger until finally it rises to the surface, splits its shell, and emerges as a winged insect."

"Fishermen call this a dunt, but to newspapermen it is a reporter or an editor. At this stage its wings are covered with a thick skin, its body is tubby and opaque, and when first hatched it is nearly incapable of flight. The scientific name for it is subimaginal, which means less than perfect. I think it is particularly appropriate for both the insect and the newspaperman."

"I do not mean to call any specific editor an imperfect insect except, perhaps, when he advocates spoiling the sport of a million anglers by running Route 17 down the bed of the Beaverkill River, just because he doesn't like to fish himself. No, I draw no such inference as regards newspapermen, either in general or in particular; it is just a figure of speech."

Perfect Insect Emerges

"In the course of time the fly which is called the dunt sheds its thick skin and then that beautiful creature—the spinner, the imago, the perfect insect, or, to continue the metaphor, the sports columnist, emerges in all glory."

"He is transparent; I mean, it is easy to see through him. He is full of gas. He spends his time with others of his kind dancing up and down in the sunlight and not doing a lick of work. He is the imago, the anything personal in the foregoing. It merely arises from my bitter realization that while I am shovelling snow off 150 feet of driveway and jamming quarters into the New Haven Railroad's parking meters with numb fingers, the columnists will be sipping Scotch, rye, bourbon, gin, rum, vodka, and other varieties of nectar, dancing up and down in the sunlight on diaphanous wings, and not doing a lick of work."

"Try not to lay an egg."

He Is Indeed Real

Through all the years when communications from Sparse Grey Hackle have appeared here, people have asked repeatedly whether he is a real person or an imaginary correspondent. He is indeed real.

He is a bald, portly, courtly gentleman of wide learning, a skilled but sedentary angler, a boon companion, and a man of monstrous evil. When he isn't fishing or writing letters, he does things in Wall Street. His name is Alfred Waterbury Miller. He is deeply sinful and he ought to be suppressed, but not, please God, while a guy needs help.

All that's left to fight over in the National Hockey League now is second place—between Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks—and fourth place—between New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings.

Any lingering doubts about first place were dispelled last night in Toronto, where the defending-champion Montreal Canadiens outscored the slumping Leafs, 4-2.

And, of course, Boston Bruins have long since laid claim to last place, and are now only one game away from mathematical playoff elimination.

Canadiens, getting stronger as the season progresses with Jean Beliveau and Dick Moore steadily contributing more to their attack, are now 13 points ahead of the Leafs with 14 games left for both clubs.

CHERISHED SPOT—Instead of first place, the Leafs now have to worry about holding on to second place, a cherished finishing position in that the holder avoids meeting Canadiens in the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

Last night, the Toronto margin dwindled, to three points as Chicago's late-charging Hawks came from behind to take the Wings, 6-4. Leafs have the edge of two games in hand but they have been slumping badly while the Hawks appear to be just hitting peak form.

The Wings lost their share of fourth place, the New York Rangers breaking a tie by whipping the Bruins, 4-2. Detroit has two games in hand.

Play at Toronto was on the verge of side with Canadiens clearly superior although outshot, 29-23, and the crowd of 13,750 frequently jeered at the hometown Leafs.

The Hawks drew 13,159 fans, and Bobby Hull, making a late run for the point championship, came up with two goals and two assists to move into second place, one point ahead of pointless (last night) Gordie Howe and six points behind New York's Andy Bathgate.

EFFORT MATCHED—Hull's goals were his 36th and 37th of the season, an effort matched by Stan Mikita, who got his 21st and 22nd.

Penalties played a big part in the Detroit defeat, the Hawks cashing in on their power play three times.

Wings took a 4-3 lead into the last period but Ab McDonald scored the tying goal on a power play and Mikita got what proved to be the winner with less than three minutes left.

Eric Nesterenko finished off the scoring by firing into an empty net with 35 seconds left.

STICKS FLEW—Another big crowd—13,708 fans—at Madison Square Garden. They were to see a third period Ranger comeback which brought three goals and a stick-swinging duel between rookie defenceman Ted Green of Boston and New York forward Guy Gendron.

Both received major and match misconduct penalties from referee Dalton McCarthy and face fines possibly as high as $500 for attempt to injure.

Andy Hebenton tied it at 2-2 midway through the third period with a picture goal. Harry Howell produced the winner at 16:57 and Johnny Wilson, who had scored Rangers' first goal, hit an empty net at 19:37.

But the Chiefs forgot to lay down. They lost, but it took a bit of highway robbery and a lucky bounce for Nanaimo to beat them, 5-4, in the opener of their best-of-three series last night at the Sports Centre.

SCRAP BACK—Down 4-2 with 10 minutes gone in the third period, the Chiefs scrapped back for two goals by Art Green that tied the score. Then they lost it at 18:13, when the puck came rocketing out of a face-off to the left of the Esquimalt net.

The shot was by Stan Berry. It bounced once, and goalie Ron Griffiths, screened badly, couldn't move quite fast enough to block it once he saw the puck.

That was the bounce. The robbery came in the second period, when Chiefs' Les Corby scored on a breakaway with the score 3-1. Goalie Bob Lumley partially blocked the shot, but the puck trickled over the line by inches.

GOAL DISALLOWED—Except that the goal judge didn't see it that way, and disallowed the goal. Minutes later, Bob Fowler scored the goal that should have tied it up.

Berry scored two of the Nanaimo goals. Danny Zolob, Norval Wheatcroft and Earl Robinson added the others. For Chiefs, it was Corby, Fowler and Green with two.

It was a shame that Griffiths had to lose on a shot like the last one by Berry after he had played so well. In the other net, Lumley had a fine night with 37 saves, but he couldn't compare with Griffiths. He blocked 66.

Second game goes March 3 in Nanaimo, where Nanaimo is usually unbeatable.

HELD BACK?—There was suspicion in some quarters that a confident Frank Crane held his club back in the first two periods last night. If he did, he got the scare of his life in the Munro, Ore.

Island Gloves Here—Victoria's PPCLL Boxing Club will stage the Vancouver Island Golden Gloves championships March 3 at its Work Point Barracks, with about 15 bouts taking in all weight classes.

Fire Caused By Cigaret Says Chief

PORT ALBERNI — Fire which destroyed the Alberni Valley Curling Club early last Saturday morning was caused by a smoldering cigarette.

Fire Chief Bill Venables made the statement after three days of investigation.

"You can quote me on this," he said. "There have been a lot of silly rumors around town and the official cause of the fire should be made public."

It is believed a burning cigarette was thrown into a trash container in the upper part of the building that housed the clubrooms and kitchen.

At Victoria University Sports Bursary Urged

Question of athletic bursaries will be put before the Victoria University Athletic Council today in the first step of a move toward some form of athletic scholarship.

Under the plan being put forward by Sue Dickinson, director of women's athletics at the University, a $100 bursary would be given to those who have done well in athletics at the University and who plan to remain there at least one more year.

The bursary would not be presented to a graduating student, or to one coming to the University for his first year.

If the plan is passed by the Athletic Council, it must then be presented to the Student Council for voting. From there, if passed, it would go to the scholarship committee of the faculty, which would have the power to accept or reject the plan.

This procedure applies only to the bursary plan. Any move toward a full athletic scholarship such as given in the United States would have to be made by the governing body of the institution as a part of University policy.

Chiefs Come Close To Hockey Upset

By JIM TAYLOR

Esquimalt Chiefs weren't supposed to cause anybody any trouble in the Coy Cup playoffs. They were a mere formality, to be brushed aside by Nanaimo on the way to the Island championship.

But the Chiefs forgot to lay down. They lost, but it took a bit of highway robbery and a lucky bounce for Nanaimo to beat them, 5-4, in the opener of their best-of-three series last night at the Sports Centre.

SCRAP BACK—Down 4-2 with 10 minutes gone in the third period, the Chiefs scrapped back for two goals by Art Green that tied the score. Then they lost it at 18:13, when the puck came rocketing out of a face-off to the left of the Esquimalt net.

Garden Notes

Flower for Dancers

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRES

Every year I find myself becoming more and more enthusiastic over the tuberous begonias, and in our family we are always dreaming up new ways of using these easy-to-grow plants to add color to our house, patio and garden. We set them out as bedding plants in a spot around the north side of the house where ordinary annuals won't bloom for lack of sun. We put up a few for summer-flowering houseplants and last year we hung pots of begonias on the wall of our shaded patio, making a most charming effect.

Here we have an easy-going plant which will bloom its head off with an absolute minimum of direct sunshine. Ideal for north-facing planters and window boxes. Given a coolish spot, indoors or out, and plenty of peat moss or half-rotted leaves in the soil, the plants will almost grow themselves, producing exotic, tropical-looking flowers that look as if they should be growing in the rain forests of South America or worn in the hair of a Hawaiian dancing girl.

The bulbs are a bit expensive—25 to 55 cents each, depending on the variety—but against this high first cost, you get a lot of mileage out of them. They are not at all difficult to store over the winter and may be used over and over again. I have some over six years old and blooming just as profusely as when they were youngsters.

If you should develop a yen to try your hand at begonias this year, I suggest you get your bulbs purchased and started into growth right away. They are not too happy out of the ground at this season of the year and, regardless of whether they are lying in a bin in one of the garden shops or are stored in peat moss in a cool corner of your own basement, they are feeling their oats and anxious to get on with the job of pushing out some roots and little pink growth buds.

I'll give you the dope on how to start them into growth in my next column. Today, though, I think we'd better go shopping for the bulbs and see what different kinds are available.

The common kind, and the cheapest to buy, are the camellia-flowered begonias, with flowers four or five inches across and a petal arrangement similar to that of an oversize camellia blossom. The plants are sturdy, standing a little better than a foot tall, producing blooms of great beauty, coming in various shades of scarlet, crimson, yellow, white, orange, salmon, pink and copper.

The fibriata type have fully double flowers heavily fringed and ruffled, and for this reason are sometimes called the carnation-flowered begonias. Prices for these frilly beauties usually run quite a bit higher than for the ordinary kinds. The color range is about the same.

The cristata or crested begonias have an attractive tuft or cockcomb on each petal of the bloom. The flowers are single in form, but about as frilly as grandmother's petticoat and, on some of the more expensive named varieties, the tuft or crest is a different color to the rest of the flower, creating quite a dramatic effect. For example, the variety "Autumn Glow" bears flowers almost 10 inches across in a delicate apricot color, with the petal tufts in a deep copper shade. You can expect to pay at least a dollar each for bulbs of this beauty.

Pendula or hanging basket begonias have a pendulous or trailing habit of growth, rather like that of the old balcony petunias, and are used in much the same way—to dangle down from planters, hanging baskets and window boxes.

Multiflora begonias are less highly bred and closer to the original wild plants and are therefore harder and able to stand up under more sun. The plants are dwarf and compact and, while the individual flowers are small, they bloom so profusely that you can hardly see the plant for the mass of flowers. These are grand for smallish or narrow beds where the larger plants would be out of proportion and, for south- or west-facing window boxes, too sunny for the ordinary kinds.

Sister's White House Tour

NEW YORK — Everybody we talked to was impressed by Mrs. John Kennedy's television tour of the White House, and we believe Mrs. Kennedy has made a great contribution to the American home because she has made people conscious of their own surroundings and furniture.

Probably no one was more influenced by the program than our own sister who lives in Kew Gardens, Long Island. We went over to her apartment on the Sunday after Mrs. Kennedy showed the White House and our sister was waiting at the door to give us a guided tour.

"Thank you for coming," she said. "I'd like to show you around because I feel that's the only way people can understand our heritage."

"Well, it's awfully kind of you to let us come here," Mrs. Jaffe. Where shall we begin?"

"I think we ought to start with the East Room," she said. "We call it the East Room because it overlooks the Eighth Avenue Subway and Queens Boulevard—at least it did until someone built an apartment across from us and blocked the view. The East Room was originally intended as an audience room where we could meet our in-laws, our insurance agent, and our son's teacher when he got in trouble at school."

"But now it's gradually become associated with other events. Our large receptions are held here because, as you can see, this room can hold as many as 12 people at one time."

"Would you describe some of the furniture to me?" we asked her. "I'd be delighted. That couch over there, the one with the stuffing coming out of it, is an early Franklin Roosevelt period piece donated to us by Aunt Molly, who said she was going to throw it out anyway."

"That lamp over there is a rare pre-Pearl Harbor Macy Basement Special. There are only 65,900 of them left in the United States."

"Is that the oldest thing in the house?" we asked her.

"No, the hot water heater is the oldest thing in our house, but that's in another room."

We walked into what our sister calls the Blue Room, because this is the room in the house that depresses her the most.

"There are many things in this room that do have a historical interest," she said. "That bed there for example is Early Truman Gimbel's Four Poster. It was given to us on the day that Mr. Truman had a fight with a Washington music critic over his daughter's voice, so naturally it has sentimental value. Actually it's been taken away twice, but it has always turned up again after we made the payments."

"Those are lovely paintings on the wall," we said.

"Yes, they are," Mrs. Jaffe said. "This one here which is a snow scene was donated by Uncle Oscar of Brooklyn, New York, who painted it himself and gave it to us as a present on the condition we would never sell it."

"I'd like to point out one more thing and that is our President Monroe television set, which is probably the most valuable antique in the room. The television tube for the set was made by a famous glass blower who died somewhere around 1856. Every week we have someone come in to restore it."

"Is there any other room you would like to show us?" we said.

"There is the Red Room where my 13-year-old son David holds his state receptions."

"Well, are there any other rooms in the house we could visit?"

"She looked at us funny. 'What other rooms? That's all we got.'"

Lost Whole Caboodle

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—John Wayne didn't use all Texas money for his movie disaster, "The Alamo." He put in a million and a half of his own. Lost the whole caboodle. I hear good reports about his African safari film, "Hawaii." Unfortunately, John has no money in this one.

MCA, the gigantic octopus of show business, has a champion in Tony Curtis. Tony resented the recent article in a magazine attacking the Music Corporation of America. He is now writing a rebuttal piece for the same publication.

Debbie Reynolds was forced to cut out the dozen or so movies she had planned for this year. She will finish her "Six Loves"—if it starts soon enough. And that's it, until after the baby arrives in September.

The film biography of the late James Dean is on again, and the boy they want to play "The Boy from Indiana" is singer Rod McKuen. Jimmy still has an enormous number of fans, and his life story should make a good movie.

Arlene Dahl recently told me she would be spending a year in Italy making movies. Something went awry and, instead, the lovely redhead will be launched in her nightclub debut at Las Vegas in mid-March. She has a good launcher—comedian Shelley Berman.

New York critics can kill a show with bad reviews but don't always make a hit with good ones. Almost to a man they praised "The Caretaker" with Donald Pleasence, which I thought was high-falutin' double-talk, though spiked by confident performance of whatever nonsense they were talking about. The play is coming off this month.

Inga Swenson understudied Julie Andrews in "My Fair Lady" but beat Julie to the movies—two, in fact—the Pat Nease role in "The Miracle Worker" and a big part in "Advise and Consent." After seeing Julie on the Lerner and Lowe television spec, why isn't she making movies?

The Bitter Battle of the Slums

RIO DE JANEIRO—One of the smaller controversies in this lovely, lazy city is the battle of the picture magazines, which might be subtitled: "Your slums are worse than our slums—so there." The war of the picture magazines started when "Life" last June ran a picture essay showing how horrible life is in the favelas, which climb straight up the hills around Rio. These are supposed to be the world's worst slums—though that's a sweeping statement. They are certainly the world's most picturesque slums and everyone will tell you that no other slum dweller the world over has such a marvelous view of sea and sky. "Life" made the existence in the favelas one of appalling degradation. "Foul" cried "O Cruzeiro" which is a sort of Brazilian "Life" magazine.

"O Cruzeiro" immediately invaded our own Harlem, which has some fairly unenviable slums of its own, and did its own picture feature, centering around the Puerto Rican Gonzalez family whose degradation—cockroaches crawling over the face of a child and all that—was just as great as "Life's" favela degradation. "Foul" cried "Time" magazine. "Time" charged the Gonzalez family had been paid to pose for their degradation, and the cockroaches were dead and there by the "O Cruzeiro" photographer.

"Ho," screamed "O Cruzeiro" in reply to "Time." "Life" and the whole Luce empire, "O Cruzeiro" charged "Life" made up the whole favela story.

A favela dweller named Joao Pereira de Oliveira took me in hand the other day and showed me his own hands and where he's lived for 10 years with his wife, Joanna, and their three children. There's a tiny room with a table and chairs, a careful of canaries hanging from the ceiling, a tiny bathroom with one double bed, a little kitchen, and a balcony overlooking the blue sea. Small but picturesque. If these favelas were made of somewhat sturdier materials they would be in 80 years the artist colony of Rio and then all the chic avant garde crowd would be trying to get in and the rents would go skyhigh.

The rent now is exactly nothing and you can hardly find rents like that any more.

especially in the heart of town overlooking the Atlantic Ocean. Of course, there's no sewage and no water in the house, but a canon water faucet fairly close. Pereira is a baker. His wife works too, making shirtwaists, and they are a cheerful couple.

If Josh Logan ever sees this place, I thought, it'll be another "South Pacific" and it'll probably run 12 years.

Second Mail Not Needed —Postmaster

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian and American households are too well equipped with telephones to need twice-daily delivery of mail, U.S. Postmaster-General Edward Day says.

Multiple deliveries are necessary in the United Kingdom, he says, because it has only 16 telephones for every 100 persons. The British even order their groceries by mail.

Americans have 40 phones for every 100 persons and the Canadian figure is even higher, he said at a joint press conference Tuesday with Canadian Postmaster-General William Hamilton.

Astronaut 'Welcome' Says John D

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the Commons yesterday American astronaut John Glenn, Jr., would receive a "tremendous welcome" if he visited Canada with his family.

Canada as a whole would welcome such a visit, Mr. Diefenbaker said in a reply to Edwin W. Brunson (PC—Medicine Hat).

However, the prime minister did not specifically extend a formal invitation to the astronaut.

Mr. Berry, associate secretary of the United Church board of evangelism and social service, said this practice would protect youth and rid newsstands of "filth and trash."

CENSORSHIP NEEDED

Mr. Berry called for "a wise and much-needed system of censorship," suggesting establishment of a board of men and women to which all literature and books of doubtful nature would be referred.

"They would not necessarily ban a book or picture," he said, "but might place some on a reserve list to be imported, distributed, read, viewed only by licence given to those responsible people who might apply."

"Perfection consists not in doing extraordinary things, but in doing ordinary things extraordinarily well."

Fisher Snorts 'Ha'

Argue in New Seat

OTTAWA (CP)—Hazen Argue gave the Commons another chapter of his political cliff-hanger Wednesday and promised a further instalment on his political future at an early date.

Reading from a prepared text he informed the Commons formally of his resignation from the New Democratic Party and announced he wants to seek reelection in his Saskatchewan constituency of Assiniboia.

GETS APPLAUSE

He spoke from a new seat sandwiched between a Conservative and a Liberal, well removed from his former CCF-NDP colleagues. He received applause from the Liberal MPs he is expected to join.

The only interruption was a snorted "ha" from Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) when Mr. Argue said integrity required him to quit the NDP last Sunday.

Mr. Fisher, who nominated

Mr. Argue for the NDP leadership at the founding convention last August, made an unsuccessful attempt to reply to his former parliamentary leader's statement. He then gave notice he will do so today during the throne speech debate.

Mr. Argue told the Commons that "much careful and heart-searching thought" preceded his decision to quit the NDP. The hardest part was leaving his eight CCF-NDP colleagues who have served their country and their constituencies with distinction and whose devotion to duty is an example to the whole house.

SMALL CLIQUE

A small labor clique, he said, controls the party. Their hold would strengthen with affiliation of more union locals. With labor predominating at conventions, debate "becomes superfluous and votes become an exercise merely to rubber-stamp previously agreed-to platform directives."

'Top Job Offered'

Mayor Whitton Reports Overtures by Grits

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton says she has been offered a cabinet portfolio by Liberal leader Pearson if she swings her allegiance from the Conservative party.

She told board of control that Mr. Pearson "offered me the works portfolio if I crossed the floor."

Miss Whitton has repeatedly become embroiled in arguments with Works Minister Walker over federal projects in the city.

Mr. Pearson was unavailable for comment.

Drug Cost Criticisms Dismissed by Group

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Pharmaceutical Association asserted yesterday much of the public criticism concerning drug costs is unjustified.

Increasing amounts spent on drugs is largely a reflection of the mounting utilization of drugs, the association told the royal commission on health services.

According to the dominion bureau of statistics' cost of living index, drug price increases were below the over-all rise in living costs between 1950 and 1960.

The worst single submarine disaster in history was the loss of HMS Thetis in 1939 when 99 men were entombed.

Twentieth-Century Challenge

Outsiders Walk Vital Part of Road to Health

By G. E. MORTIMORE

Homely objects like a bathtub and an ironing-board are instruments of healing at Gorge Road Hospital in Victoria.

Skilled physiotherapists use such things to help sick and injured people find their way back from hospital to the everyday world.

Fifth Article Of a Series

People who have suffered "strokes" (paralyzing clots in blood vessels of the brain) and other disabling conditions must learn all over again how to stand, walk, climb in and out of the tub and wield an iron or a carpenter's hammer.

A Long Way

Some of them can not hope to be fully mobile again. But even if they can move about in a wheel chair, hoist themselves from the wheelchair to the bed and back, and feed and dress themselves, they have advanced a long way from being wholly dependent and bedridden.

Many people who used to be sentenced to life in bed now are being brought back into the world by devoted nurses and therapists working under doctors' orders.

Behind Them

Social workers and food experts also help, and behind them stand three other often-forgotten but vital members of the health team—the husband (or wife), the neighbor and the politician.

What have these outsiders to do with doctors and hospitals? A great deal—but before we examine their part in the healing process, we should take a closer look at the patients who benefit from their interest.

Mrs. Jones, who has suffered a stroke, enters Gorge Road Hospital from St. Joseph's or Royal Jubilee.

'Tilt Table'

She is paralyzed down one side and part of another; she has "forgotten" how to walk. Under the guidance of Mrs. Margot Fox, English-trained physiotherapist, attendants strap her to a "tilt table"—a platform of variable angle, which they crank down to a nearly upright position.

Pressure on the soles of the feet helps to bring back the thrusting action of walking. Meanwhile, in the physiotherapy room, other patients are going through exercises of different kinds.

Young Men

They are old people with broken hips—lying prone and moving the legs in a scissors motion, the feet mounted on roller skates; young men on Workmen's Compensation treatment restoring damaged arm tendons by learning to lift weights of increasing size.

The restoration of Mrs. Jones turns out to be a slow process. Her hair flops loose and her pale face is twisted in an expression of intense effort as she half-stands, halts on the tilt table, using her utmost will-power to move her legs.

It takes days—several sessions on the tilt table—before she can move a little.

Time Comes

Meanwhile, Mrs. Peggy Macgregor, a combined occupational therapist and physiotherapist who has charge of therapy in the self-care section of the hospital, has interviewed her and sized up Mrs. Jones' capabilities.

The time comes when Mrs. Jones has gained strength to stand and drag herself along the corridor, clinging to the handrail that is placed there for that purpose.

As soon as possible she transfers to the self-care section, where all the patients dress and make their way on foot or by wheelchair—to the dining room for meals.

Mental Lift

The fact of dressing and eating in the dining room gives patients a mental lift: It makes the patients feel like competent and responsible people.

Nerve impulses from the control centre of the patient's brain have bypassed the damaged pathways and found a new route; Mrs. Jones is beginning to walk.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Macgregor has been helping her re-learn such homely skills as climbing in and out of the bathtub. Other stroke patients are learning to walk with their new artificial limbs, leaning on a pair of bars as they move.

No Plumbing

It is a dry bathtub that the physiotherapist lowers Mrs. Jones into. There is no plumbing in this section of the old Crow-Baker mansion which serves as the nucleus of the Gorge Road Hospital. (Modern sections have been tacked on the old house; much more space is needed.)

The self-care training room

is in the former dining room of the tall brick house, a room with a high ceiling and worn, blotchy wallpaper.

"I wish I had a sink where they could wash dishes," says Peggy Macgregor, an attractive woman in slacks, who moves with the grace of a gymnast or a dancer.

Try a Walk

After some weeks of practice walking, bathtub-climbing sessions at the ironing board and group exercises—the members of the group cheering and teasing one another along—Mrs. Jones has gained enough strength that she is judged ready to try a walk by herself.

Lightly supported by Mrs. Margot Fox, physiotherapist, she moves across the lawn. At a carefully calculated moment, the physiotherapist steps out from under her arm and lets her walk several tottering steps; then moves quickly forward to catch her.

It is the physiotherapist's short duration. Some patients never make it at all, but Mrs. Jones is lucky.

Thanks to the hard work of physiotherapists and the nurses, she is ready at last to go home. She will never be able to run around the block; but she can walk and look after herself.

Her Husband

Now an amateur member of the medical team gets to work—her husband. He will be helping her from now on; it would be Mrs. Macgregor's job—if she had time—to visit the house and make sure the husband doesn't help too much.

Some well-meaning relatives actually buy wheelchairs for rehabilitated patients; make life too easy for them and actually cause them to deteriorate. Self-reliance is good medicine.

However, Mrs. Macgregor hasn't time to visit the home and there is no one else to do the job. Some patients, as a result, suffer a relapse. Relatives hurt them by too much kindness.

Many Ways

This is the point at which the politician becomes a member of the medical team. Doctors often warn against the dangers of political interference with medicine. In fact, medicine has been deeply involved with politics for a long time, in many ways, of which the rehabilitation of disabled people is only one.

Once politicians come to realize the need, they may set aside money to organize and staff a full home-care program, which would allow a physiotherapist to go to Mrs. Jones' home, prepare the way for her return and visit her at intervals; bring her back to the hospital, too, for outpatient treatment after she has left.

Hard-worked public health nurses and VON nurses carry out a home-care program now; but their numbers are limited.

The solo walk needs to be of

They need the help of physiotherapists, nutritionists and social workers. Many people now occupying beds in general hospitals could be treated at home by visiting teams.

But B.C. Hospital Insurance Service does not pay for home-visiting—even though it may save money by providing cheaper care in an atmosphere which is favorable to recovery.

And Money

The politician as a member of the health team may press for such projects at the planned addition to Gorge Road Hospital, the activation wings of general hospitals which many doctors would like to see built, and the money for the training of many more therapists and other auxiliary workers of medicine.

Of the estimated $200,000 cost of a new wing to Gorge Road Hospital—aimed to provide much-needed extra therapy facilities for patients and outpatients—all but $65,000 will be supplied by federal and provincial grants.

In This Case

Spanish recently balked at the idea of supplying any part of the $65,000. Politicians, in this case, failed in their duty as members of the health team.

Hospital planners argue that money spent in this way would actually be saved many times over.

Mrs. Jones, the stroke case

Tornado Rips Resort City

MAR DEL PLATA, Argentina (UPI)—A tornado packing winds up to 75 miles an hour slammed into the southwest section of this resort city yesterday, causing extensive damage and injuring at least 20 persons.

Police said the winds ripped off roofs, toppled trees and knocked down several buildings under construction.

who went home, had no money to live on but her $79 a month old age pension and supplementary allowance. If she had been sent to a nursing home, she would have cost the taxpayers $116 a month for the rest of her life.

Net Saving

Cost of her rehabilitation, two months in Gorge Road, paid by B.C. Hospital Insurance Service—$800.

The amount she would have cost the taxpayers if she had gone to a nursing home as a bedridden patient—$1,160 a year. Net saving the first year—$360. For every year after that, the taxpayers will save more than $1,000. Last year more than 500 patients went through Gorge Road Hospital. At least 100 of them (a conservative figure) would have been welfare cases.

Play a Part

Saving to the taxpayers—$100,000 a year. And the human material salvaged is difficult to evaluate in dollars.

Those are some of the reasons why many people are looking to the politicians to play their part as members of the health team.

Tomorrow: Human salvage.

Special Access Law Ready This Session?

A special Public Access Act may be presented to the legislature at the 1963 session, the special legislative committee on public access over private roads was told yesterday.

It was assumed finding of the committee will be incorporated into the proposed Act. There was no public access to the access committee meeting, which went into camera on the advice of Lands and Forests Minister Williston.

He said certain inter-departmental matters were to be presented and there might be questions which deputy lands minister E. W. Bassett might not feel free to answer in public.

SENIOR SERVANTS

Mr. Bassett outlined the findings of a special work group of senior civil servants on the access problem and recommendations made by the deputy ministers' committee and a special cabinet ministers' access committee.

The Tofino, Port Renfrew and Gold River roads were mentioned as special problems for study.

MIGHT REPLACE

It was the report from the cabinet committee which recommended establishment of the special House committee to hear submissions from industrial and other interested groups . . . and it was the cabinet ministers who suggested drafting of a Public Access Act.

It was envisioned the Act would be administered by the department of commercial transport and might replace the Industrial Transportation Act.

TENURES STAY

It would be a vehicle for making regulations governing use of private easements and rights-of-way, but would not cover the granting of tenures, which would remain within the lands and forests department.

The special work group of senior civil servants was suggested as the logical group to write the new Act.

SOME PROBLEMS

The legislative committee was told some of the access problems included reverted private roads, such as those constructed to timber sales, and the question of their maintenance for use of the general public; the timber land owner, timber sale licensee or tree farm licensee who is using his private road which the public wishes to use for fishing, hunting or general access purposes; privately built roads linked by highways department roads and privately constructed roads.

It was pointed out owners of private roads are concerned because they feel other users should pay at least part of the initial and maintenance costs. They are concerned about safety factors such as heavily loaded logging trucks meeting other vehicles.

They feel unrestricted and unregulated traffic is a nuisance to the operator and regulation by a watchman is an extra cost.

FIRE RISK

Operators also fear the fire risk occasioned by other users and damage and theft to their property through unrestricted public road use.

Tax-Grants Supported By MLA

The provincial government should make grants to municipalities in lieu of municipal taxes, Rae Eddie (NDP-CCF—New Westminster) said in the legislature Wednesday.

He noted the government has advised its new hydro authority will pay school taxes and grants to municipalities on properties of B.C. Electric Co. and B.C. Power Commission.

Fortune in Butterflies Stolen

OTTAWA (CP) — Someone with a splendid taste in butterflies has relieved the central experimental farms of 10,000 of its finest specimens. Both the RCMP and city police have been called in to hunt down the thief who combed through the 4,600,000-insect collection to sneak away with the cream of the crop. Some of the butterflies had been there since 1917, carefully pinned to cork panels in the bottom of shallow drawers. They were, of course, dead. A monumental puzzle facing police is the exact time of the great theft. It seems no one has checked the drawers since October, 1958. Who could have done it? Director G. P. Holland, of the entomology research division of the farm replied only, "God knows." "It was a pretty tricky business," he said. "A real sneaky operation." He said the insects, exceedingly brittle by this time, would have to be transported in containers. Could it be an inside job? "We have nobody here like that, thank goodness," Mr. Holland said. The stolen butterflies are worth about $8,000.

New Zealand Official:

Free Trade Bloc Has No Advantage

Blizzard Nears Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta battered down the hatches late Wednesday in anticipation of a near-blizzard sweeping down from the Northwest.

The Dominion Weather Office at Edmonton issued a weather warning and said snow and blowing snow could be expected to produce near-blizzard conditions over most of the province today.

The storm hit the Peace River area last night and knocked out power in most of the Dawson Creek area for about three hours. Visibility was down to one-quarter of a mile as north winds of 30 miles an hour whipped snow.

Clear skies and plummeting temperatures follow the swift passage of the storm.

There is no advantage in Commonwealth nations forming a free trade bloc of their own to offset Britain's proposed entry into the European Common Market, John Stanhope Reid, New Zealand high commissioner to Canada, said here last night.

In a telephone interview with the Colonist shortly after his arrival at Government House, Mr. Reid said he thinks Commonwealth nations are not "natural trading partners over a very wide field."

"I think we can increase trade among ourselves but not enough to take the place of the trade each of us have with the United Kingdom."

He said New Zealand is "apprehensive" about Britain's proposed entry into the Common Market because "we send 80 per cent of our dairy products and meat to Britain. They're all products which will be affected by the agricultural policy of the Common Market."

New Zealand has an assurance from the British government that "they will not feel able to enter the Common Market unless New Zealand's vital interests are protected," added the high commissioner. Mr. Reid, 60, former New Zealand ambassador to Japan,

Oil Cuts Alberta Losses

EDMONTON (CP) — Provincial auditor C. E. Mackenzie said Wednesday Alberta had a $23,642,000 operating deficit at the end of the third quarter of the current fiscal year—Dec. 31, 1961. He said no improved oil picture reduced the deficit from $28,000,000 at Sept. 30, 1961.

House Disrupted

marched on the building shortly after 11:30 a.m.

Some women marchers pushed babies in prams and a number of small children accompanied their parents.

Paddy Neale, secretary of the Vancouver Labor Council, estimated the cost of the demonstration at $4,000 and said it had been collected over a three-month period with some contributions from labor councils.

Signs included: "Schools Not Shelters," "Kill Bill 42," "35 Hour Week," "Canada Needs Cargo Ships not Warships," "Social Credit means Social Suffering," "Compensation for All Fishermen," "Peace Means Jobs," "Stop the Export of Jobs," and "A Moratorium on Public Utilities and Taxes."

PARADE MARSHAL. Last year some 2,000 unemployed marched on the building.

This year there was a parade marshal, a loudspeaker system, and a guitar-playing bandier who led the marchers in working songs.

Sample: "I'm spending my nights in the flophouse. I'm spending my days on the street. I'm looking for work and I find none. I wish I had something to eat."

The unemployed presented briefs to the Liberal and NDP-CCF caucus groups and buttonholed individual Social Credit MLAs and cabinet ministers in the corridors.

Premier Bennett did not meet with the demonstrators but has agreed to meet with a delegation on March 15.

"By that time he'll be in Honolulu," sneered a marcher. "Did somebody say we want Bennett out here," a voice boomed over the public address system. "I wonder if he's peering out of one of those windows."

BANGED GAVEL. The afternoon sitting had scarcely got under way when Works Minister Chant was interrupted by the shouts of the unemployed outside the legislative chamber.

The shouting was taken up by some inside. "I'll not have any further outburst from the galleries or I'll have them cleared," ordered Mr. Speaker Shantz, banging his gavel.

Twice more shouts came from the galleries. NOISE SUBSIDED. Then all those unemployed sitting in the chamber took up the chant again and shouted "We want jobs" 15 times.

Attorney-General Bonner said he was willing to put a motion that "strangers are present" but when the noise subsided he said he would be prepared to put the motion at a later date.

Statement in Court

Cans and Strings Symbols In Freedomite's Bombings

NELSON (CP) — Five statements in connection with the bombing of a power pole were admitted as evidence Wednesday in Assize Court at the trial of six members of the radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect charged with bombing.

The hearing had been bogged down for two days as counsel argued admissibility of statements of the accused to police in a trial within a trial.

SIX ACCUSED. The accused are Pete and Elizabeth Legebokoff, George and Molly Perepolkin and brothers Mike and Harry Laren.

Mike Laren, in his statement, said he, his brother and Pete Legebokoff spread pepper along their tracks to fool RCMP tracking dogs before placing the bomb.

LET IT EXPLODE. RCMP discovered the unexploded device under a power pole 32 miles north of here Dec. 29 and allowed it to explode.

Pete Legebokoff in his statement said former Freedomite leader John Lebedoff called several men to a meeting and told them an orchestra was needed because a lawyer was making a visit to the area.

CANS, STRINGS. The statement said Lebedoff mentioned cans and strings as instruments and that the music must be "good and loud."

The statement said those at the meeting interpreted the strings to mean power lines, the cans bombs.

35 Votes Made MP Out of Tory. TORONTO (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party Wednesday was named official winner of a by-election in the Toronto Eglinton provincial riding.

Leonard Reilly, PC candidate in the January by-election, was declared victor after Judge A. B. Curry announced a recount had given him a majority of 25 votes, three more than in the election-day tally.

Mr. Reilly collected 11,390 votes; Mrs. Jean Newman, Liberal, picked up 11,355 and Eamon Martin, New Democratic Party, had 2,707.

Tipster Discloses Murder, Suicide

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Police last night were investigating what was described as an apparent murder-suicide, in the deaths of two Lauzon, Que., residents in a rooming house in the city's lower town district.

Acting on an anonymous tip-off, city police went to the rooming house late last night and discovered the bodies of Mrs. Lucien Bernard and that of a man, believed to be her cousin, Henri Bernard, both in their early 40s.

A preliminary investigation indicated the couple had been dead for 18 hours, police said.

Mrs. Bernard was beaten to death with blows from a hammer and the man died from a bullet wound in his throat, police reported. An inquest will be held.

Douglas Refuses Coalition 'Up to Liberals and Tories'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — If a coalition government is necessary after the next federal election, T. C. Douglas, national Liberal party leader, would prefer to see the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives form it.

Mr. Douglas said Wednesday the NDP had no intention of forming a coalition with any party, despite remarks made Wednesday by former NDP house leader Hume Argue.

Mr. Douglas was asked about remarks made by Mr. Argue on late Wednesday to start a three-day visit to Newfoundland. He had been scheduled to arrive Tuesday, but was held over nearly 24 hours in Halifax because of a raging snowstorm here.

He said at the press conference Mr. Argue would be the "most disappointed man in Canada" if he counted on attracting CCF members of Parliament out of the NDP to form a new party.

They had voted unanimously from the party to continue in the NDP with himself as leader, Mr. Douglas said.

Chinese Liquor Leads to Court

CALGARY (CP) — Discovery in Alberta of supplies of a beverage, said to have been manufactured in China and labelled for "medicinal" purposes, has sparked police investigations in Calgary and Edmonton.

Two elderly Edmonton Chinese have been charged with illegal possession of liquor.

Edmonton police reported seizure of seven big wooden cases containing the bottled beverage when they sought the source of bottles found on intoxicated persons.

Two days later Calgary police seized 113 bottles in the basement of a private home in the city's Chinatown. They said the bottles were described as "medicinal wine" for sale to Chinese only.

In Alberta, it is illegal to sell beer, wine or liquor which is not distributed through the Alberta Liquor Control Board.

Board chairman Peter Elliott said no Chinese liquor is distributed by the board.

Police said the bottles seized in Edmonton were distributed through a Chinese trading house in Vancouver and sold across the counter in several downtown stores.

Analysis of the liquid in one bottle showed an alcoholic content of more than 60 per cent — stronger than most liquor sold in government stores. Price was said to be $2 for a pint bottle. Lowest price of a similar-sized bottle of rye at government stores is $2.50.

Racing-Rule Law Near For Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Provincial Secretary A. R. Patrick last night said legislation to establish a racing commission in Alberta will be introduced early in the current session of the legislature.

Mr. Patrick, who this week discussed Ontario's commission with its chief steward, J. Rigewickie, said "the talks resulted in no basic changes in the legislation we had planned."

He said the Alberta commission would be an independent of the government and other interested parties as possible.

The commission, styled after Ontario's, will not come into being until 1963. B.C. also has a commission.

Racing in Alberta currently is controlled by a committee with representatives from the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association, the Western Canada Thoroughbred Racing Association and the public.

"It's been doing a wonderful and fair job but the principle of a volunteer group undertaking such a task and its close relationship with those involved in racing might, in future years, lend itself to criticism," Mr. Patrick said.

Family Runs Wall of Fire Two Hurt

WINNIPEG (CP) — A family of three ran through a wall of flame Wednesday in an escape from their burning home. The father and his four-year-old daughter suffered burns to the face and body.

The mother was not seriously injured. Donald Gifford, 23, and his daughter, Karen, were taken to hospital where they are in fairly good condition.

'Just Monkey'

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass described yesterday the shooting of a monkey in the Pamir mountains of Tadzhik.

The agency said the creature was found at a height of 9,000 feet "where even the oldest people living cannot remember ever seeing a monkey."

The monkey, a male covered with thick red-brown fur, was 26 inches tall, had a tail 10 1/2 inches long, and weighed 30 pounds. Fur of this color also is attributed to the mountainous members of the nearby Himalayas, but natives who claim to have seen it say the monkey is much larger.

Ontario Prices Up

Peace Fund Drive Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some 2,000 canvassers will blanket the Lower Mainland, Victoria and some interior areas seeking funds for the Canadian Peace Research Institute which has launched a drive for $500,000 in B.C., institute officials said Wednesday.

Liquor Laws Eased

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government announced minor measures to streamline liquor laws Wednesday.

Permits required since 1927 to purchase liquor in Ontario will be abolished, prices of liquor will be revised slightly upwards and consumption of alcohol in outdoor camps will be legal.

The permit system will be abolished April 1. Premier

Robarts noted the $1 annual permit has been "a continuing source of irritation to purchasers."

Prices at the Liquor Control Board stores, only legal outlet, will be adjusted upwards to the nearest five cents to compensate.

School Board Asks 13 Parking Permits

Greater Victoria school board has lost no time in following through on a hint dropped last week by Mayor R. B. Wilson.

At a city traffic committee meeting last week, Ald. Michael Griffin suggested the school board trustees should be given free parking permits, but Mayor Wilson suggested the committee wait until an application was made.

Yesterday the application arrived. The school board has asked for 13 permits—one for each of eight trustees and five for board employees.

Trust Breach Nets King Three Years

Former city real estate man Milton King was sentenced to three years in jail yesterday after pleading guilty Feb. 7 to criminal breach of trust involving some $30,000.

Well-dressed and neat in a dark suit, King took the sentence without a show of emotion as Magistrate William Oatler told him:

"I have considered the case with great care and in all the circumstances, you will be sentenced to three years in the penitentiary."

GOOD CHARACTER

Prominent Victoria residents gave evidence of previous good character before King was sentenced. They included city alderman Millard Mooney, Rev. G. R. Easter of First Baptist Church, and Jack Barrackough, president of Victoria Symphony Society.

CONTRASTING VIEWS

Contrasting pictures were painted by David Hummel, representing King, and Angus Smith, city prosecutor, in their addresses to Magistrate Oatler.

MADE REAL EFFORT

"Mr. King was one of those members of the real estate board who made a real effort some years ago to have the real estate bond increased to a substantial amount," Mr. Hummel said in part.

RATHER IRONIC

"Ten thousand dollars, I think it is now. He was one of the prime movers. It is rather ironic, but it is because that was done that there is so much money (in his bond) to pay claims."

He said he believed the breach of trust started about 1960.

TO HELP EMPLOYEES

"Of this money ($30,000), just short of half—from what I can gather—was to help employees who were having difficulty. During 1960 Mr. King was using his good name to borrow in order to help his employees and to finance his office and himself to carry out ... (real estate promotions)."

USE OF MONEY

Mr. Smith argued King's use of the money to finance his business ventures made the owners of the money unwilling partners in his business.

"What would have been their profits if the ventures had been successful?" he asked.

WHAT RIGHT?

"What right had he accused to use these persons' trust funds—making a good fellow of himself with other people's money?"

"It would be the same if he had given all the money to charity—he had no right to take it in the first place."

USING MONEY

"... Because of his respectability, the accused comes into a position where he can commit this offence. Some of that respectability is maintained by the offence—using other people's money."

New Light Look

Widow's Death Ruled Accident

Death of Mrs. Ada Huson, found in her Saanich home late Tuesday, has been ruled accidental by Saanich police. "Police earlier launched a large-scale investigation after her body was found in the basement of her home at 960 McBride. A frontal bone fracture of the skull, causing brain damage, and exposure, were given as the cause of death by Chief W. A. Pearson following a pathologist's report.

"It looks as if she had fallen down the basement stairs, and in a dazed condition tried to get to the basement door," he said.

Hall Needs Volunteers

Volunteer labor will be used to build a community hall for the Prospect Lake Community Association.

Construction of the hall at Sparrow Road opposite Wray Avenue is expected to begin right away.

A house-to-house canvass is being conducted to raise funds for building materials.

Mooney Hits Booth Plea:

Why Should Taxpayers Pay for Tourist Trade?

The city's ratepayers should not have to pay to bring customers here for the Victoria tourist industry, Ald. Millard Mooney said last night.

"The people who directly benefit from this tourist business should pay most of what it costs to bring the tourists here," he said.

Ald. Mooney was commenting on a request by spokesmen for the motel, hotel and restaurant businesses that the city underwrite the cost of a $57,000 Seattle world fair publicity booth.

MET MAYOR

The delegation met Mayor R. B. Wilson in his city hall office yesterday morning.

Mayor Wilson pointed out to the delegation the city donated $50,000 each year to the operation of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau and had pledged a further $10,970 toward cost of the booth.

GRIFFIN IDEA

But Ald. Michael Griffin last night offered an alternate suggestion.

"If the up-island areas will not pay their share of operating the booth they should get no publicity through it," he said.

If sufficient money to operate the booth is not pledged by the time city council begins its meeting at 2 p.m. today, he will move that the city guarantee the cost of the booth on the understanding the cost will be raised from local businesses.

"If this is done then the booth will only pass out pamphlets advertising Victoria and nothing else."

Booth Means Money 'Only for Victoria'

Municipal council of North Cowichan has voted unanimously to reject the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau plan of $1,563 for Seattle fair booth costs.

One councillor said: "The only place that will get its money back is Victoria."

Brave Boy Left Out —He's Not in Cubs

By JACK FRY

Because he did not join a Cub pack of which his two friends are members, a nine-year-old Saanich boy will miss out on official recognition of an act of bravery.

Douglas Pigot, 2451 Camelot, was one of a trio credited with the rescue of Robert McFetridge, 12, of 2604 Sinclair, who nearly drowned at Cadboro Bay Aug. 22, 1961.

SCOUT HONORS

He is not a member of the Scout movement and therefore is ineligible for honors awarded by Canada's Chief Scout.

His pals, Cub Mark E. Bailey, 10, of 2555 Kilgarry Place, and Cub David R. Highsted, 10, of 2447 Camelot, will jointly receive a certificate of meritorious conduct for helping to save Bob McFetridge's life.

BOTH UPSET

Both Cubes and local Scout officials were upset about the fact no honor will be bestowed upon Douglas Pigot.

"I didn't feel very good about this. He helped in the rescue," said Mark Bailey.

"Mark and I both felt it was kind of a dirty trick and we wish he was a Cub so he could get a reward, because he deserved it just as well as we did," said David Highsted.

HOW ABOUT?

Lt. Col. Reginald Girard, regional Scout commissioner, said: "I agree the lad should receive recognition. There's nothing we can do if he wasn't a Scout. How about the Royal Humane Society or the St. John Ambulance?"

The three youths used an unusual but effective technique in saving young McFetridge when he became exhausted in water beyond his depth.

They kept him afloat by treading water and taking turns diving under the water and pushing him to the surface, while calling for help.

Their cries were answered by Mrs. Lois Shandley, who pulled the boy to shore.

City Parade Shaping Up With Surprises in Store

Keep Home Open VLC Urges

Victoria Labor Council last night passed a resolution protesting to city council the decision to close Mountain View Home.

The resolution called on council to "reconsider this matter with a view to keeping the home open at least until a progressive plan of procedure is laid down following an analysis of the whole situation."

Suggested time the home should remain open was between two and five years. The motion was put to the VLC as a result of a recommendation from the executive and passed unanimously with no discussion.

In House Today

Highways Minister F. A. Gagnard is scheduled to speak in the legislature today at 3 p.m. Other scheduled speakers are John Squire (NDP-OCF-Alberni), Alex Matthews (SC-Vancouver Centre), Jacob Hahn (NDP-Saanich River) and B. O. Newton (SC-Columbia).

Organizations reporting at a meeting of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association indicated the parade would be many floats based mainly on the centennial theme, and with some surprises being planned.

Among the floats, chairman Joseph Wright said, would be a $4,500 float put in by the City of Victoria, which will also appear in other parades in this coastal area.

GRANT INCREASED

In addition, said Mr. Wright, the city has increased its grant to the association by $1,000 to $2,500.

The Royal Canadian Navy, besides a big marching contingent, will have six floats in the parade.

TAKE CARE AGAIN

A letter from the Junior Chamber of Commerce, whose annual fair this year will end on the Saturday of celebrations weekend, said the Jaycoys will again take care of the Queen contest and coronation, and is prepared to help in other ways.

However, because the Jaycoys have undertaken to make a large cash grant from fair proceeds to Victoria University, they would not be able to make their usual grant to the Celebrations Association.

LETTER TO CITY

The meeting approved a motion that a letter to city public works committee advise its members of this situation, so they would know what the association was up against financially. Because of this revenue cut, Mr. Wright said he had written to the centennial committee asking for a grant, since about $10,000 would be needed to carry on and provide prizes that would attract floats for the parade.

BIG U.S. ENTRY

Once more there will be a big entry of U.S. high school bands for the parade. Another, Shoreline High School of Seattle, has advised the association its members cannot miss school so will not be here for the parade, but offer to present a two-hour variety show and concert Saturday afternoon, May 19, in Beacon Hill Park.

The association approved a $400 outlay to make this possible.

ELK LAKE REGATTA

Other events slated for celebrations weekend include the inboard-outboard regatta at Elk Lake May 20; stock car races May 19 and 21; horse show through the weekend; two afternoons of motorcycle races; square dances on the street and in Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Next meeting of the association was set for March 13.

How to Tune a Tooth Gets Mixed Reception

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

SEE SHALL HAVE MUSIC: Radioman Bill Fries reports that one of his listeners has been receiving CKDA loud and clear on her tooth filling!

But a day or so ago she went to her dentist and now the music is still. She's angry and wants to know how to get the station broadcasting from her tooth again.

To be frank, we didn't believe Bill.

But we checked with several radio experts and they say it is not only feasible it has happened a number of times before.

Seems the filling acts in much the same way as a crystal set.

But they can't help. They just don't know what can be done to the tooth to get it on the right wavelength again.

HELP WANTED: B.C. Maritime Museum curator Bill Syme wants to obtain a picture of HMS Bacchante, flagship at the Pacific station at Esquimalt from 1880 to 1962. Neither the museum nor the provincial archives have a picture and he hopes someone may have one stored away in an old trunk up in the attic.

THE THINGS WE HEAR: Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane told the legislature yesterday it's pretty tough trying to get anything across to Social Credit members.

"You just have to keep repeating," he said. "Like the drip, drip, drip wearing on a stone."

"He's a drip," snorted Premier Bennett, referring to the M.L.A.

"You drips and stones get together," commented Opposition Leader Robert Stanish.

FENCE MENDING: The government is recognizing a change in the fashions of farm fences.

A bill introduced in the legislature by Agriculture Minister Frank Bligher yesterday gives cabinet power to set the types of approved fences without having to go to the legislature.

Previously the Trespass Act had defined the types of fences that are approved for certain purposes but some of them are no longer made.

FATES OF GLOVE: One of the "unemployed" marchers who stormed the legislature yesterday was seen after right past my house," he complained.

self-styled lighthouse philosopher.

"What are you doing here Bill?" we asked.

"I want a job," he said. "I want a job to get rid of the trade union adventures." A few of the marchers who overheard his remark gave him an odd look.

QUOTABLE QUOTE: New Westminster NDP-OCFer Rae Edie slapped out at Lilbert Soeder Don Robinson for his constant praise of Kelowna's Premier Bennett yesterday.

"This member has become a real apple polisher," said Mr. Edie. "I think he has developed a tremendous ambition to polish all the apples coming out of the Okanagan."

TOO CLOSE TO HOME: An improved bus service is needed in Victoria, Warden Melrose W. N. Chan told the legislature yesterday.

"It has stopped running right past my house," he complained.

Some 40 members of the B.C. division of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association from throughout the province met here earlier this week and attended a reception at the home of Mrs. Norma Fitzsimmons, vice-chairman, second from

Scientific Approach

Communication Is the Big Thing In Making Marriage Work

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some months ago a Texas real estate operator stepped off a plane in New York and headed for a place where he expected to find a wife.

Systematic and successful in business, he had been just the opposite in marriage. Tired of weddings ending in divorce, he wanted one with a scientific chance of a story-book ending the next time.

The Texan carried no flowers or perfume for his new wife. He expected to show night clubs and parties.

The cab from the airport took him to a sedate office where he did a very unromantic thing. He took a battery of tests and talked about himself during psychological interviews.

He talked to Dr. Eric Riss, head of Scientific Introduction Service, the nationally famous match-making agency that uses an electronic cupid in a cold approach to matching people bent on marriage.

The information the client from Texas parted with during the tests and interviews was carefully coded and put on IBM cards.

Then it was fed into the calculator that sifted the information through its mental brain, reaching into its perfect memory of 3,000 people for wisely candidates for the Texan.

The whole process took two weeks. But at last the machine—sans the influence of moonlight or roses—came up with the name of a woman who seemed to have a lot in common with the real estate operator.

The most obvious thing in common: both had gone to a scientific introduction service for a match suggested by an electronic computer.

Each wanted to take the risk out of marriage, approaching it on a rational basis—one based on interests, backgrounds, attitudes and motives in common.

Dr. Riss said in an interview the marriage took place some months later and it appears to be a successful one.

The psychologist has been arranging marriage by IBM since 1954.

ONE DIVORCE

"Of the 500 marriages," he said, "we have had just one divorce. That's saying a lot for approaching marriage the scientific way. The divorce rate for marriages arranged on hearts and flowers alone is one in four."

"We don't guarantee anything. Science is advanced, but not advanced enough to guarantee marriage."

Dr. Riss said most of the people who refer to his service have some college education, many were divorced and want less risk the second time.

NOT STABLE

Most of the women are 35 or older, but one was 17. Men under 20 are not accepted for Dr. Riss doesn't believe they are stable enough for marriage.

Once the scientific method matched up a woman 30 and a man 31, Dr. Riss said they are happily married still.

Dr. Riss said he doesn't accept alcoholics or fortune hunters.

"We tell the latter," he said, "you don't need us. Go to a resort and look around."

Dr. Riss said the marriages that work have in common the following characteristics: —The people are attracted sexually and emotionally.

—They can communicate and talk over everything on their minds.

—They're matched in education, finances, and general outlook.

"The matter of communication cannot be overemphasized," the psychologist said. "The main trouble with a lot of marriages is that after a while the husband and wife don't talk to one another."

Italian Designers Plunge New Hemlines

ROME (UPI) — "Romantic" was the pass word for Italian high fashions in Rome and Florence this season. As feminine as an old-fashioned lace fan, Italian fashions for spring and summer are as modern as tomorrow's headlines.

"Prills, flounces and ruffles" splashed through every collection.

"The mood was sometimes extravagantly coquettish. The silhouette of the Italian look for 1962 gives credit where credit is due to woman's figure."

The waistline wanders high and low — you can wear it where it suits you best. In some collections waists were as high as Empress Josephine's. In others they dipped gently to hip-bone level.

The only note of controversy on the Italian fashion scene: the hemline. The majority kept skirts short but lady-like—just covering the kneecap.

Fabiani plunged his hemlines a dramatic four inches below the knee. His wife and rival designer Simonetta compromised on hemlines that stopped well above the mid-calf but were considerably longer than most.

But these designers were on their own in launching a longer look. Materials of Italian collections were all lighter than air. Floating, flowing and swirling materials like chiffon and light crepe were designers' pets.

The collections blazed with warm-toned fruit and flower colors. Orange in all shades from harvest moon to tangerine or orange sherbet was the top color.

Green took an easy second place, especially in bold tones of emerald and grass.

And for light relief, collections suggested white. Fourquet, the young Neapolitan-born designer who made his solo debut this season showed outfits which he dubbed "absolute white."

Crisp white suits with all white accessories and only a touch of pink for blouses illustrated his white for summer idea effectively.

The collections that drew most applause from the professional audience of buyers and fashion writers in Florence was Prince Irene Galitine's.

Her silhouette was gently clinging, yet ultra-sophisticated. She used the gentlest shade of brightest colors with an unerring eye.

The star of the sportswear collections was Pucci with his low-slung pants teamed with long jersey blouses. Something between dude ranch cowboys levis and mid-riff-barring pants that swept the south of France last summer.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a married woman with growing children. My problem has caused me untold grief and humiliation.

*My father is an attractive, well-to-do man who lives in another city. Mother died when I was in college. Two years ago Dad started to go with a lovely woman. We were all pleased and hoped they would marry. They did not marry but two years ago they began to share a home and live together as man and wife.

Recently I asked my father why he chose to live like this. He replied "I want everything I own to go to you and your children." I told him I would gladly forego all inheritance rights if he would marry this woman and live respectably in the eyes of God and man. He refused.

Dad wants to come to visit us next month and bring his "companion." I don't want them to stay in our home. How shall I introduce them to our friends?—NO WORDS.

Dear No Words: For your own peace of mind you must accept the fact, emotionally as well as intellectually, that you are not responsible for your father's behavior.

You've been forthright and appealed to his sense of honor without success. Now forget it.

Tell your father that you

Dear Mother: Your son has earned the title of Doctor and it is his prerogative to use it if he wishes. Ask him how he feels about it.

The title, Doctor, is not reserved for physicians only. Dentists, clergymen and scientists may use the title—and properly so.

Confidential to Well Dressed: You are prissy and mid-Victorian. Wake up before some smart substitute puts you on the bench.

Burnett-Miles Vows Said in St. John's

St. John's Anglican Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday evening when Patricia Doreen Miles exchanged nuptial vows with Mr. James Edward Burnett before the Rev. Canon George Biddle.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Miles, 3354 Cedar Hill Road, was given in marriage by her father. Her floor length wedding gown of pure silk tulle taffeta was styled with fitted bodice and large bow at the back of the dropped waistline giving a bustle effect. The neckline was appliqued with Chantilly lace and dusted with sequins and seed pearls. The lily point sleeves and full skirt, entrain, had the same lace applique.

Her chapel length veil of silk illusion, trimmed with sequins and pearls, misted from a Juliet cap of net and lace, trimmed with a net rose. Her bouquet was of red roses and white carnations.

Miss Jill Mutter was maid of honor and Miss Elizabeth Miles and Miss Barbara Burnett were bridesmaids.

They wore dresses of salmon pink lustre satin, ballerina length, and headresses of roses to match. Their Colonial bouquets were of white carnations and pink sweetheart rosebuds.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Burnett, 1052 Topaz Avenue, had Mr. Fred McFadden as best man.

Mr. Dave Simmons and Mr. Sid Loughheed acted as ushers.

A reception was held at the Golden Slipper where Mr. W. A. Pearson acted as toastmaster. Telegrams were received from the bride's grandmother, Mrs. E. J. Miles, Winnipeg; Mr. Tommie and Mr. George Burnett, Vancouver, and Mr. Dave Logie, HMCS Ottawa.

Leaving on a motor trip to Washington the new Mrs. Burnett wore a tangerine knitted dress, milk trimmed brown coat and matching hat. Her corsage was of tangerine colored carnations.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. H. Omand of Port Alberni and Mr. and Mrs. H. Chaplin of Nanaimo.

Visitors At Fulford

FULFORD—Mrs. R. J. Doyle has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. Stewart, at Beaver Point for several weeks. With her were her two children, Kerry and Sean. Recently of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Doyle are now residing in North Vancouver. The Doyle family have lately returned from a trip to Dublin, Ireland, where Mr. Doyle visited his family before returning to B.C.

Mrs. M. Sileck of Ladner, B.C., has been spending a few days on Salt Spring Island. She was the guest of her brother, Mr. Andrew Stevens, and Mrs. Stevens during her stay.

Woman Parole Board Member Speaks Of Prisoners, Parole and Public

The relationship between "Prisoners, Parole and the Public" was topic of a speech to Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon when Miss Mary Louise Lynch, only woman on the five-member National Parole Board in Ottawa, spoke.

Miss Lynch is a graduate of University of New Brunswick with a Bachelor of Civil Law, was called to the bar in New Brunswick, and was the first woman to take a case to the New Brunswick Court of Appeal.

She was secretary and registrar of the faculty of law at the university, and in 1954 was named to the senate of the university, to which she was recently named for another six years. As well as affiliation with the University Women's Club in Saint John, she is town planning committee chairman and a member of the community planning association of Canada.

VENGEANCE STRESSED "In the early days of our penal system, the stress was on vengeance," the speaker said.

"Punishment is still a part of the system, but also stressed now is rehabilitation. This is not entirely altruistic, because we must look at the financial side of it too."

She went on to show that an average of $2,500 per year per prisoner was spent for maintenance, plus $1,200 to $2,000 per year for the family, this to be paid through various municipal, provincial or federal agencies, which in turn clean this money from taxes.

The job is to give the prisoner a means of learning a trade and supporting himself when he is released.

"Our parole system has been in operation since 1898, but then a prisoner was said to be 'on ticket of leave.' Since 1947 there has been a change made. Prisoners are no longer just 'locked up,' she said.

Trades training and group therapy with psychiatrists and psychologists conducting discussions have been instituted, as have educational classes.

65% of Women Prisoners Are from This Province

Female prisoners were discussed by speaker, Miss Mary Louise Lynch, in her speech to Women's Canadian Club. She mentioned that in the women's prison in Kingston, almost 65% of the prisoners are from British Columbia. This was attributed to the high incidence of dope addiction on the west coast.

Miss Lynch described the prison under its previous regime, and under the present one.

The fortress-like building was built in 1943 for men, and attached to the prison was a women's wing. Later, when the wing burnt, it was decided to build a new penitentiary, and Kingston Prison became female quarters.

Grim cells, drab uniforms, old bedroom slippers and a pathetic attempt to add curtains and artificial flowers to the cells greeted Miss Lynch on her first visit to the prison.

Since that time she has seen many changes. Through the Elizabeth Fry Society, who work with the female prisoners, they now have new uniforms, more feminine shoes, a school, business course, new wing with bedrooms, and a new auditorium.

The uniforms, available in a choice of nine colors, are variously, willingness to work, learn and reform.

The outside situation, that is, the job opportunities, the home situation and possible circumstances in which the parolee will find himself on his release are studied, so as to make the prisoner's chances of success outside jail most advantageous. After this, a parole analyst submits his report, and then parole board makes the final decision. Factors they keep in mind include the protection of the public.

"We won't take chances," the speaker said.

GRADUAL RELEASE On the subject of paroles, Miss Lynch gave an outline of a relatively new procedure of gradual release, whereby prisoners, after a long confinement, prior to their release are introduced to freedom by degrees.

So that they may become used to present-day traffic, opening doors, being out in public, ordering a meal, shopping, and any of the everyday situations with which they have not had to cope for a number of years, they are taken out for a few hours, a few days, or perhaps a week.

This is attributed to that fact that most of the women have not had to cope for a number of years, they are taken out for a few hours, a few days, or perhaps a week.

Kitchen Trick

In broiling steaks, most cooks prepare the medium steak just fine—errors are usually made with the well done and the rare steaks. Remember not to overcook the well-done steak because the longer it cooks the more juices are extracted from it, and with juices go flavor.

Remember to brown the rare steak well on one side only, then heat through from the second side — and serve brown side up.

TV TALK

A friend says with pride he can tell his grandchildren that "I sat in on history in the making" as he watched the Glenn space shot.

I blush to admit that I can't. If my grandchildren ever ask me, I'll have to hang my head and mutter: "History in the making? I slept right through it."

Despite good intentions and an alarm clock that shakes rattlers, I did not rise until the shot was completed and the ships were heading out to pick up Glenn.

Our set went on just in time to hear some announcer interrupt the broadcast to announce with a little catch in his throat that Glenn's daughter had been elected president of her Grade 9 class. This little bit of Americana was a bit too much on an empty stomach, so the set went off immediately.

However, grandchildren, don't despair. I may have missed out on history, but I saw the re-run.

Thursday's Highlights

ELIZABETH TAYLOR AND EDDIE FISHER
... far apart after Rome rumor

'Food of the Gods' Blamed For Flooring Housewife

FORT WORTH, Tex. — A district court awarded $5,550 to a housewife who charged that she bit into a pie and hurt her back.

Mrs. William Caldwell, 53, said she bought an "Ambrosian pie" made by the Tasty Pie Co., and cut herself a big piece.

When she took the first bite her back teeth shattered on a bolt the size of a cigarette, and she fell to the floor in a faint.

LONDON — The House of Lords was addressed by a Roman Catholic monk for the first time in 400 years. Baron Vane of Haveringden, who took monastic vows in 1932, invoked his ancient title rights to address the Lords on the care and training of youth.

VATICAN CITY — Pope John received U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy and expressed his congratulations for the space flight of American astronaut John Glenn.

ACCRA — Dr. Alan Nunn May, the British atomic scientist who served six years in prison for betraying atomic secrets to Russia, arrived here to begin his appointment as professor of nuclear physics at Ghana University.

LONDON — Princess Margaret visited London's East end slum area and spoke with some rehabilitated prostitutes.

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy flew to Palm Beach, Fla., to see her ailing father-in-law, Joseph P. Kennedy, before she departs for India and Pakistan next week.

NICOSIA — Archbishop Makarios, the president of Cyprus, has accepted an invitation from President Kennedy to visit the United States in June.

DOWAGIAC, Mich. — What-ever name Mr. and Mrs. Larry Gaults had picked out for their newest addition was quickly forgotten as the eight-pound, five-ounce boy arrived just one minute before astronaut John Glenn landed in the Atlantic. John Glenn Gaults and mother are doing fine.

TRIANTON, N.J. — William Wenthouse, 81-year-old motorist, voluntarily ended a 66-year perfect driving record without a ticket and without an accident.

JERUSALEM — Premier David Ben-Gurion of Israel was presented with a 200-year-old rocking chair by the biennial convention of the Hadassah-Wizo of Canada.

WASHINGTON — The United States justice department announced Tuesday Bernard Goldfarb, 71, ailing Boston industrialist imprisoned for income tax evasion, will be paroled Feb. 23.

WASHINGTON — Premier Olaf Gunderhus of Norway has accepted an invitation from President Kennedy to visit the United States in May.

ALEXANDRIA — Yugoslavia's President Tito left here for home aboard his yacht Galeb after an informal two-week visit, during which he met with President Nasser.

North America's first diesel-electric locomotive, CN's No. 8000, made its trial run in 1958.

Coalition Ends Italian Hiatus

ROME (Reuters) — Premier Amintore Fanfani Wednesday night announced the composition of his new three-party coalition government and said it will be sworn in this morning.

Observers said the new cabinet list indicated the Christian Democrat premier had decided against altering this NATO nation's defence and foreign policies. Christian Democrats Giulio Andreotti and Antonio Segni were kept on as defence and foreign ministers, respectively.

Fanfani until now has been head of an all-Christian Democrat regime. Wednesday evening he presented the new cabinet list to president Giovanni Gronchi, ending a 19-day political hiatus and paving the way for his planned "opening to the left."

The new 24-member cabinet contained 19 Christian Democrats, three Social Democrats and two Republicans. In addition, it is slated to have parliamentary backing from the left-wing Socialists.

'Alliance Stands to Gain If Britain Joins Market'

LONDON (Reuters) — Home Secretary R. A. Butler said yesterday that if Britain joins the European Common Market the association "will be a much more effective partner of the United States than either Britain or The Six could hope to be separately."

JOINT POLICIES — "The Western alliance as a whole gain correspondingly in strength," Butler told a conference of the United Kingdom council of the European movement.

"By developing with the United States joint policies for trade and aid, Europe could do much to promote better living standards and political stability in poorer countries, including those in the Commonwealth," he said.

APPLICATION IN — "Surely the Commonwealth looks forward to a prosperous Britain in a prosperous Western Europe? Surely a strong free world secures the interests and safety of the whole Commonwealth?"

Pacque Up, Claques Told

By FRANCES STILLEY
 NEW YORK (AP)—The august, dignified Metropolitan Opera has issued an ultimatum—the claques in back will cut out the clacking, or there'll be no clacking back.
 Oxford dictionary defines a claques as a "hired body of applauders."
 The Met defines them as a nuisance.
 No more, it says, is it going to truckle to the truckling applauders, the scourge of opera the world over.

Added to List

Dance Championship Centennial Feature

An international dance championship is being added to the list of centennial events for the year.
 The Victoria mother and daughter dance-instructor team of Adeline and Heather Duncan has completed arrangements for the Victoria Centennial Celebrations Dance Festival.

SENIOR, JUNIOR
 Contestants will be judged in western Canada open championships, Vancouver Island senior and junior championships and western Canada boys' highland dancing championships.
 Adjudicators will be Betty Jessiman, of Huntley, Scotland, holder of the world and British open highland dancing championships, and Janice Mitoff of the San Francisco Opera Ballet.

OAK BAY SCHOOL
 The contest will be held at Oak Bay Junior High School and Central Junior High School from April 25 to 28.

The Scottish official board of highland dancing has given recognition for a western Canada highland dancing championship in conjunction with the Victoria Centennial Celebrations Dance Festival.
 Entries have been received

Officer Going To Egypt

The position of welfare officer for Canadian troops in Rafah, Egypt, will be taken over by Capt. Ronald MacLean of 213 Anson Crescent.
 Capt. MacLean has served with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry for the past two years.

Strip Makes Policewoman 'Less Moral'

TORONTO (CP)—Stripper Evelyn West had her act reviewed in court Tuesday by a policeman.
 The details were bared during the trial of Raymond Lux, 31, and William Garden, 31, of allowing an indecent performance.
 The men are owner and manager, respectively, of the Lux Theatre.
 Magistrate Donald Graham fined Garden $200 or one month in jail and granted a defence motion for non-suit against Mr. Lux.
 Policewoman Kay Burford said she had visited the Lux Theatre and saw the performance by Miss West and testified she felt less moral after leaving the show.

Status Seekers Push Prejudice

KITCHENER, Ont. (UPI)—Rabbi Gunther Plaut said last night prejudice was increasing among status-seeking, upper social layer groups.
 Rabbi Plaut told the annual brotherhood meeting of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews that while ordinary people were making vast strides toward tolerance and brotherhood, certain upper layers of society had taken a remarkable development in the opposite direction.

Tuesday night before a performance of Aida the Met handed out handbills, mostly to the standees behind the back rail, saying in no uncertain terms: Restrain—or removal.
 "Ill-mannered, noisy and annoying shouting demonstrations, usually led by the paid claques, are becoming an increasing nuisance to music-loving patrons in all parts of the house," the notice said.
 "Our patrons are hereby requested to discipline themselves to the point where enthusiasm conforms with well-mannered behavior befitting the dignity of the house."
 "If this request fails, the management will either have to curtail drastically admittance to standing-room or, if worse comes to worst, cut out standing-room entirely."
 A Met spokesman said the opera wasn't implying that all the standees were being paid by particular artists to set up a claques chatter. Nevertheless, he said, that's where most of the racket has been coming from.
 Wednesday newspapers noted that things were "much more sedate than usual" for Aida.

 Play as many Cards as you wish!
HERE ARE THE RULES AND HOW TO PLAY THIS EXCITING BINGO GAME!
 1. The first step is to purchase one or more B'nai B'rith Bingo cards from your local drug store. Cards cost 50¢ each plus tax. More than one card can be played and cards can be purchased at any time even while game is in progress because all drug stores have a master list of numbers called to date.
 2. There are seven games in all for a total of $14,000 cash prizes. This advertisement shows the first 35 numbers in game No. 4. Mark these off your card (or cards) with an "X". Starting Friday, two additional numbers will be published in this newspaper each day (except Monday) until a Bingo winner, or winners, is reached. Normal length of time to complete one game is 12 days or so. The winners must have a full card B'nai B'rith, i.e. every square filled.
 3. The winner will be requested to answer a question.
 4. To declare a winning Bingo, you merely phone Vancouver RE-6-5571.2 (collect) before 10 p.m. the same day, except Sunday. Winner's cards will be checked the same evening by members of the B'nai B'rith Bingo Committee. Names of winners will be published the next day. If there is more than one winner, the prize money of $2,000 will be divided equally, but in no case will any winner receive a prize of less than $100.
 5. Game No. 5 will start immediately after winners have been declared for Game No. 4.
 6. Persons connected with administration of this game, their immediate families and minors are not eligible.
 7. Due to administrative difficulties, this BINGO Game must be restricted to residents of Vancouver Island and Metropolitan Vancouver. B'nai B'rith reserve the right to final decision on eligibility.
 8. All proceeds are in aid of B'nai B'rith Philanthropies.

'I Want Bunky' Girl Told

There can't be many reference books in this world that arouse intense love and devotion. One of them is Fowler's "Modern English Usage," cherished by writers throughout the English-speaking world.

The full title of the book is "A Dictionary of Modern English Usage" by H. W. Fowler. It was published in 1926 by Oxford University Press. For 36 years it has reigned supreme in its field and there's no sign anywhere that it will ever lose its appeal.

It's one of the authentic, classic masterpieces. Fowler was a literary scholar who worked on the great Oxford English Dictionary. Together with his brother, F. G. Fowler, he collected specimens of poor writing from English newspapers and books, and when they had a book full of them, they published them under the title "The King's English."

It showed, with unerring feeling for the language, where people went wrong in English usage, why they did it, and what they should do to mend their ways.

"The King's English" was published in 1906 and soon became famous. F. G. Fowler died and H. W. Fowler carried on alone. Finally, in 1926, at the age of 70, he published "Modern English Usage," which contains all the material in "The King's English" and much else besides. It was the literary testament of a man who'd spent a lifetime being amused and exasperated by the way writers manhandled the English language and had patiently nailed down every single one of their misdeeds.

Today language is studied scientifically and usage is supposed to follow what the majority decides. Fowler's approach was just the opposite. He knew what he knew and said so. He had no use whatever for anything phony, artificial or unidiomatic—in short, for anything that struck his perfect ear as wrong.

Perhaps the most famous article in the book deals with what he called "elegant variation"—the pernicious habit of some writers of ringing the changes on various synonyms to avoid repetition. One of his examples was the headline, "German Emperor's Visit to Austrian Monarch," which obviously said "monarch" because the writer was afraid to repeat "emperor."

Just a few days ago I read an item in the paper about King Saud of Arabia having an operation in Boston. The writer switched from one word to another in every single paragraph, starting with "King Saud," then going on to "the king," "the monarch," "the Arabian monarch," "the ruler," "the king" again, and so on and on. It's a wonder he never thought of "the Oriental

McNamara Hails Military Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defence Secretary Robert McNamara returned Tuesday from a review of the battle against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam and said U.S. military aid is becoming "more and more effective."

Following conferences at the U.S. Pacific headquarters in Honolulu, McNamara said there were indications that Communist advances in the southeast Asian nation had been stabilized.

Horrible Murder Of Jack of Clubs

Birth of a City

By J. T. JONES

This is the story of the horrible Jack of Clubs murder—of forbidden love and violent revenge in a Haida encampment, dark terror in the night, a posse of 100 armed men, courtroom drama—all sorts of juicy angles.

Best of all, it's a comedy.

Grisly Story

It began one late February day 100 years ago when friends of Jack of Clubs, commonly known as Jack of Clubs, noticed he had been missing overnight.

Word went around that he had been murdered by Indians, and 100 of his friends armed themselves and went looking for him. They had just begun their search when the police arrived and took over. Soon a grisly story was unfolded.

Found Hiding

In one of the Haida huts an old woman confessed that Jack's throat had been cut the night before in her house, and the body taken away by the slayer. A trail of blood led from the hut to the water's edge.

The woman was arrested, along with another woman named Jenny, said to be Jack's mistress. Further search uncovered a young Indian hiding under boxes and boards in the hut, and he was arrested, too.

He told police Jack had come there the night before, looking for Jenny, who was drunk. Jack stayed the night, and just at daybreak another Indian, named Jim, crept in and stabbed him as he slept, then slashed his throat as well.

Dragged Away

The corpse was dragged away, and the young witness said he didn't know where it was now.

Police went looking for Jim, and soon found him, along with his alibi—he'd been in jail for days. Authorities therefore assumed the young witness was the real culprit.

The Daily British Colonist of the following day recorded all this, and said there was speculation that Jack of Clubs had been done in as revenge for the murder of an Indian by a white man on Christmas night.

Jack was a popular chap, half Cariboo miner and half "sporting man," about 28 years old and well known throughout B.C. Just a week before, he had been fined $1 for beating Jenny.

The main thing missing in the murder case was the corpus delicti, and they found that the following day—cheerfully having its hair cut in a Yates Street barber shop, and the picture of health.

Indians Freed

In high good humor, Jack went along to court to explain that he wasn't dead and had only been visiting a friend out in Saanich. The trail of blood, it turned out, had been left by a dog.

Of course the arrested Indians were freed at once, and the magistrate called for charges against those members of the original mob who partially destroyed a Haida hut and used bad language to the police.

Power Review Urged by Tory

OTTAWA (CP)—Ernest Broome (PC-Vancouver South) suggested in the Commons Tuesday night that the government review its power export policy.

Mr. Broome said that if Canada has surplus power there is no reason why exports should be forbidden.

He said that the national energy board "should look at this realistically."

MONTREAL, February 22nd—Most every gal I know has something in mind for which she is pinning, perhaps it's a new dining suite, a new living room rug—maybe, a dashing new spring outfit. If you have something you're yearning for, you can finance it through a low-cost BANK OF MONTREAL Family Finance Plan loan. This modern plan is like a regular monthly installments spread over two years, or even longer. Talk it over with friend hubby tonight—then visit your neighbourhood branch of the B of M tomorrow to arrange for your B of M Family Finance Plan loan.

HERE I AM RAVING AGAIN about my favourite dressings . . . Wish-Bone! Every one . . . Wish-Bone French, Wish-Bone Italian and Wish-Bone Deluxe French . . . are skillfully blended from only the finest oils, vinegars, spices and herbs to give you quality you can taste in every salad. And authentic continental recipes give WISH-BONE DRESSINGS a distinctive, nippy boldness . . . great with any combination of fruit or vegetables. Salads are such a good, nutritious way to brighten up winter meals. Serve them often . . . and always serve them with Wish-Bone Dressings. Bet the whole family will love them!

AS BREAKFAST GOES, SO GOES THE DAY . . . ever noticed? That's why I make a point of starting every day right with RED RIVER CEREAL. So good to eat and so good for you! You see, Red River is a wholesome blend of cracked wheat, rye and flax. It has extra energy values for active youngsters and oldersters alike and it guards regularly. Red River is 'nature's mild regulator'. What's more, it's so easy . . . easy to prepare and easy on the budget. So why not make a real meal of the day's first meal—by breakfasting on delicious, nutritious Red River Cereal.

SPECIALLY FOR US CITY-FOLK . . . and all who live in hard-water areas . . . here's one of the greatest wash-day helps I've found . . . soft-as-silk CALGON, the wonderful water-conditioner. See, with Calgon, how bright and clean your fresh-washed sheets can be! Calgon, the Water Doctor, cures 'Hangover Dirt' . . . the film of soil, minerals and soap or detergent that sticks to your sheets and clothes. (It's like the ring you get in your bath-tub!) Hangover Dirt makes everything stiff and scratchy, but Calgon prevents and removes it . . . without bleach. With Calgon you need less soap, sheets and clothes are naturally softer, more absorbent and really clean!

I'M DELIGHTED TO BE ABLE to tell asthma sufferers about the wonderful relief they can have . . . simply by taking RAZ-MAH Capsules . . . and, for young sufferers, Raz-Mah Grey Junior Capsules. I know, when you wheeze and gasp for breath with asthma and chronic bronchitis, it's 'no joke'. But Raz-Mah Capsules will make life seem much brighter. They bring almost instant relief and leave no unpleasant after-effects. Do discover how effective they are! Believe me, you can rely on Raz-Mah to relieve coughing, wheezing and gasping bronchitis and asthma.

I'VE JUST DISCOVERED that sauerkraut, that long-time favourite vegetable, has a fascinating history. It was first known in China in the Third Century, brought to Europe by roving tribes of Tartars . . . and now we in Canada have the most delicious sauerkraut of all—LIBBY'S SAUERKRAUT. Yes, Libby's Twentieth Century methods of preparation ensure that every can contains the same delicious, crisp, mellow-flavoured and nutritious sauerkraut. High in vitamin content—low in calories—and low in cost . . . Libby's Sauerkraut is truly a 'history maker'!

YOU'RE 'FLIRTING' WITH DANGER unless you use GILLET'S DRAIN CLEANER once a week. Because even though your sinks are spotless, dangerous sewer germs lurk in every drain. No liquid disinfectant can budge the muck they breed in. It takes Gillett's special churning, boiling action to quickly scour out muck and sewer germs that collect in clogged-up sink drains. So, it's easy to see why Gillett's keeps drains fast-running and sanitary . . . and why it always leaves your sink a safe place in which to wash dishes. Do be wise . . . put 2 tablespoons of Gillett's Drain Cleaner in every drain, every week . . . then you'll know they are clean, clear, and sanitary!

PARTICULARLY IF THERE'S A BABY in the house, you'll need the help of versatile SUNLIGHT SOAP. Sunlight leaves baby clothes softer, fluffier, more comfortable than any packaged laundry detergent can . . . it cleans them beautifully, thoroughly, yet is completely kind to hands and fine fabrics. That's because Sunlight is all soap . . . pure soap. And Sunlight is the greatest help in keeping baby's room spotlessly clean. Washes floors, baseboards and painted surfaces with the greatest of ease and never a mar or scratch. For baby's sake and your satisfaction, buy Sunlight today—in the handy, economical twin-bar pack.

Pupils Face Chaos

NANAIMO—If a nuclear attack warning was sounded tomorrow, there would be chaos in Nanaimo's schools.

The chairman of district 68 school board, W. A. Lerch, told trustees last night a civil defence alert would find the district totally unprepared to make provisions for its 6,000 school children.

GET IN TOUCH

He suggested the board get in touch with civil defence officials as soon as possible to have them assess the situation.

The board decided to ask civil defence officials to make recommendations for evacuation of schools in the event of a nuclear attack.

Courtenay Trustees Plan Trip to Victoria

COURTENAY—School trustees will go to Victoria Monday to present for department of education approval the final plans for a school building program which calls for 24 new classrooms in the district.

Included is a 10-room school for Cumberland with an activity room plus enlarged industrial arts facilities in the existing building. This plan replaces the original intention to renovate the old school.

The trip comes shortly after the education department gave final approval to the district's 1962 school budget of $1,506,908. District municipalities gave their approval previously.

Dangerous Curve Gets Safety Signs

NORTH COWICHAN—A dangerous curve on Herd Road near the Flying C ranch, which has been the scene of several accidents, will be marked by 20 zone and other safety signs temporarily, municipal council decided yesterday.

Council will also take the first steps for surveying of adjacent land in order to widen the road at this point next year.

The B.C. highways department advised council the request for more and bigger safety signs at the intersection of Grand Canada Highway and Sprout Road is not justified.

A letter pointed out a recent traffic count showed the pres-

New Church Centre Design Pleases Campaign Director

PORT ALBERNI—Plans and sketches of the proposed new church and education centre were presented by Norman Odgers, chairman of the First United Church planning committee, at a congregational meeting this week.

Willford Palmer of the United Church B.C. conference, appointed full-time financial director of the campaign for funds for the project, expressed satisfaction in the choice of design.

He said First United members and adherents will be amazed at changes in the community on completion of the church.

Campaign begins with a free fellowship dinner in Barclay Hotel March 1 and should be completed in three weeks.

Team captains will be George Trotter, Soren Grun-lund A. B. Paul, J. Stewart, Dr. R. D. Bleakley, J. Bates, H. Pitts and R. Guild.

He said Mr. Baugh-Allen: "But do they want work, that's the question."

He continued this problem may be holding up the school program, Mr. Lerch disagreed.

'No Light from Westwood'

NANAIMO—Recreation Minister Westwood's speech in the legislature Tuesday "cast little or no more light on his department's plans for Newcastle Island in Nanaimo Harbour than we have had already and that is little enough," Ald. Bus MacDonald said Wednesday.

He had received the support of council Monday in expressing dissatisfaction with progress made by the department of recreation in developing the island as a provincial park.

Ald. MacDonald said he was disappointed no indication had been given in Mr. Westwood's speech as to just what would be done this year on the island.

"I'm sure the people of Nanaimo did not turn the island over to the provincial government as a political football," he added. "I feel access to the island is most important and the quickest way to provide access for automobiles and trailers this summer is by means of a ferry.

"A bridge, of course, is the only acceptable permanent solution and is essential if we are to get the maximum use from the island when development is complete."

Mayor Peter Maffeo is seeking a meeting with Mr. Westwood.

Hungry Sleeper Confesses

DUNCAN—Charged with breaking and entering and vagrancy, Adam Buchan, no fixed address, pleaded guilty in police court yesterday and was remanded for sentence today. Police found him in a local coin laundry asleep under a table.

Buchan admitted he had forced his way into the Reddi Kwik Restaurant to steal food. Court was told Buchan did not touch the till containing some change. He said he did not have any money and he was hungry.

ALBERNI—House-to-house mail delivery will start here March 12, A. E. Catterall, district director of postal service, announced yesterday.

Four letter carriers will be required to cover the 1,700 homes and business places in Alberni. These have been selected by civil service competition, open to local residents, said Mr. Catterall.

The new service follows several years of controversy as residents disputed the proposal to close the Alberni post office with the inauguration of letter-carrier service. It will mean a change of postal address for almost every family in Alberni, with box numbers

Frontage Charges To Change

COURTENAY—City council has accepted a court of revision recommendation that changes should be made in sewer frontage charges.

Originally, the bylaw called for payment of 17 cents a front foot on a minimum of 50 feet. Thus owners of lots would pay for 50 feet on lots less than 50 feet.

Owners with more than one lot in one parcel were called on to pay on 50 feet of the first lot and actual size thereafter.

Now the bylaw will be amended to permit classification of multiple lots as one parcel and frontage tax will be charged on actual frontage with no minimum.

School Board Asks 13 Parking Permits

Greater Victoria school board has lost no time in following through on a hint dropped last week by Mayor R. B. Wilson.

At a city traffic committee meeting last week, Ald. Michael Griffin suggested the school board trustees should be given free parking permits, but Mayor Wilson suggested the committee wait until an application was made.

Yesterday the application arrived. The school board has asked for 13 permits—one for each of eight trustees and five for board employees.

Trust Breach Nets King Three Years

Former city real estate man Milton King was sentenced to three years in jail yesterday after pleading guilty Feb. 7 to criminal breach of trust involving some $30,000.

Well-dressed and neat in a dark suit, King took the sentence without a show of emotion as Magistrate William Oester told him:

"I have considered the case with great care and in all the circumstances, you will be sentenced to three years in the penitentiary."

GOOD CHARACTER

Prominent Victoria residents gave evidence of previous good character before King was sentenced. They included city alderman Millard Mooney, Rev. G. R. Easter of First Baptist Church, and Jack Barrackough, president of Victoria Symphony Society.

CONTRASTING VIEWS

Contrasting pictures were painted by David Hummel, representing King, and Angus Smith, city prosecutor, in their addresses to Magistrate Oester.

MADE REAL EFFORT

"Mr. King was one of those members of the real estate board who made a real effort some years ago to have the real estate bond increased to a substantial amount," Mr. Hummel said in part.

BATHE IRONIC

"Ten thousand dollars, I think it is now. He was one of the prime movers. It is rather ironic, but it is because that was that there is so much money (in his bond) to pay claims."

He said he believed the breach of trust started about 1960.

TO HELP EMPLOYEES

"Of this money ($30,000), just short of half—from what I can gather—was to help employees who were having difficult times. During 1960 Mr. King was using his good name to borrow in order to help his employees and to finance his office and himself to carry out ... (real estate promotions)."

USE OF MONEY

Mr. Smith argued King's use of the money to finance his business ventures made the owners of the money unwilling partners in his business.

"What would have been their profits if the ventures had been successful?" he asked.

WHAT RIGHT?

"What right had the accused to use these persons' trust funds—making a good fellow of himself with other people's money?"

"It would be the same if he had given all the money to charity—he had no right to take it in the first place."

USING MONEY

"... Because of his respectability, the accused comes into a position where he can commit this offence. Some of that respectability is maintained by the offence—using other people's money."

New Light Look

Widow's Death Ruled Accident

Death of Mrs. Ada Huson, found in her Saanich home late Tuesday, has been termed accidental by Saanich police. Police earlier launched a large-scale investigation after her body was found in the basement of her home at 980 McBarr.

A frontal bone fracture of the skull, causing brain damage, and exposure, were given as the cause of death by Chief W. A. Pearson following a pathologist's report.

"It looks as if she had fallen down the basement stairs, and in a dazed condition tried to get to the basement door," he said.

Mooney Hits Booth Plea:

Why Should Taxpayers Pay for Tourist Trade?

The city's taxpayers should not have to pay to bring customers here for the Victoria tourist industry, Ald. Millard Mooney said last night.

"The people who directly benefit from this tourist business should pay most of what it costs to bring the tourists here," he said.

Ald. Mooney was commenting on a request by spokesmen for the motel, hotel and restaurant businesses that the city underwrite the cost of a $57,000 Seattle world fair publicity booth.

The delegation met Mayor R. B. Wilson in his city hall office yesterday morning.

Mayor Wilson pointed out to the delegation the city donated $50,000 each year to the operation of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau and had pledged a further $10,970 toward cost of the booth.

GRIFFIN IDEA

But Ald. Michael Griffin last night offered an alternate suggestion.

"If the up-island areas will not pay their share of opera-

Municipal council of North Cowichan has voted unanimously to reject the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau plea of $1,562 for Seattle fair booth costs.

One councillor said: "The only place that will get its money back is Victoria."

Car Plates On Saturday

Provincial motor vehicle offices will open Saturday to help ease the annual last-minute rush for car licence plates.

The offices will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. George Lindsay, motor vehicle superintendent, said yesterday.

New plates must be installed by midnight Wednesday.

Casualties Today

Forty doctors from all over B.C. will treat simulated casualties at an advance treatment station set up in Lansdowne Junior High School this morning.

The doctors are completing a four-day course at the provincial civil defence training establishment at Keating Cross Road.

DUNCAN — Robert Dawkins of Duncan was fined $10 in police court for driving without his eyeglasses as specified on his licence. For following too closely behind another car, Michael David of Ladysmith was fined $10.

DUNCAN — A referendum to assess 4,000 members of the IWA's local 130 $2 a month to build up an emergency fund passed with a slight majority, president Weldon Jubenville said yesterday.

The emergency fund will be used to help any group of this local's IWA members involved in a dispute, starting with Hillcrest loggers idle since Jan. 2 in a free transportation dispute. The assessment will stop when the $12,000 mark is reached.

ALBERTA — The Recreation Commission Softball League is inviting players, umpires, supporters and coaches to a meeting in Notre Dame parish hall in the basement of the French Catholic Church at 5 p.m. Sunday.

Plans for the coming season will be made and officers will be elected. Teams must be registered by March 14. They may sign up at the meeting or by telephoning the secretary, Mrs. G. Shand, 750-12.

Brave Boy Left Out —He's Not in Cubs

By JACK PEY

Because he did not join a Cub pack of which his two friends are members, a nine-year-old Saanich boy will miss out on official recognition of an act of bravery.

Douglas Pigot, 2451 Camelot, was one of a trio credited with the rescue of Robert McPetridge, 12, of 2604 Sinclair, who nearly drowned at Cadboro Bay Aug. 23, 1961.

SCOUT HONORS

He is not a member of the Scout movement and therefore is ineligible for honors awarded by Canada's Chief Scout.

His pals, Cub Mark E. Bailey, 10, of 2555 Kilgus Place, and Cub David R. Highland, 10, of 2447 Camelot, will jointly receive a certificate of meritorious conduct for helping to save Mr. McPetridge's life.

BOTH UPSET

Both Cubs and local Scout officials were upset about the fact no honor will be bestowed upon Douglas Pigot.

"I didn't feel very good about this," said Mark Bailey.

"Mark and I both felt it was kind of a dirty trick and we wish he was a Cub so he could get a reward, because he deserved it just as well as we did," said David Highland.

HOW ABOUT?

Li-Col. Reginald Girard, regional Scout commissioner, said: "I agree the lad should receive recognition. There's nothing we can do if he wasn't a Scout. How about the Royal Humane Society or the St. John Ambulance?"

The three youths used an unusual but effective technique in saving Mr. McPetridge when he became exhausted in water beyond his depth.

They kept him afloat by treading water and taking turns diving under the water and pushing him to the surface, while calling for help.

Their cries were answered by Mrs. Lois Shandley, who pulled Mr. McPetridge to shore.

Partner Guilty in Nanaimo

NANAIMO—An assize court jury last night found Donald Murdoch-McLeod guilty of theft by conversion. He was remanded by Mr. Justice F. C. Munroe to Friday for sentence.

McLeod testified he withdrew $800 which he received as a partner in the firm of Canadiana Kitchens because his partner, company manager Arthur Dawe, would not give him an accounting. Mr. Dawe testified the company lost money.

ERRINGTON—Mrs. L. Overy and Hugh Hollins won high score prizes in the recent series of three cribbage evenings. Others winning prizes on the final night were Mrs. O. Bergquist and Mr. Hollins. Consolation prizes went to Mrs. S. Fawcett and A. E. Trill.

Series was sponsored by the Errington War Memorial Hall board. Winners of the draw were Mrs. D. Russell of Quilcum Beach and Mrs. F. N. Shaw of Errington.

UCLUELET—Volunteer fire department has elected Malcolm Mend-Miller as chief, William Russell assistant chief, and Martin Marangoni secretary-treasurer.

NANAIMO—Former superintendent of nursing at Nanaimo General Hospital, Mrs. Emily Kneen, was awarded the city's "woman of the year" trophy by Mayor Pete Maffin at a city hall ceremony.

Open Mine Open Soon

UCLUELET—Open mining at Macle Lake is expected to begin within two months, Nanaimo Iron Mines local manager T. R. Wainfink told a recent meeting of the Ucluelet-Fort Alben Chamber of Commerce.

NANAIMO—No one was hurt when a car driven by Miss Isabelle Garland, 465 Eighth, collided with an E and N train at the Wentworth Street crossing. Damage was $300, all to the car.

NANAIMO—Ways a community can combat juvenile delinquency will be outlined tonight at a meeting in Wellington United Church hall at 7:30 p.m.

Don Bingham, former Nanaimo social worker who now is deputy superintendent of child welfare in B.C., will speak at the public meeting, sponsored by the Island division of the B.C. Corrections Association.

ERRINGTON—Annual meeting of St. Mary's Anglican Church committee was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. King, with Canon L. L. Grant as chairman for the election of officers. W. D. Thomas and Arthur Bartlett were elected vicar's warden and people's warden, respectively.

Mr. Bartlett was appointed delegate to the synod. Representatives to the rural-decennial meeting will be Mrs. G. H. Lerner and Mrs. R. J. King. Committee members are Fred Dixon, Mrs. W. M. Mills and R. J. King. Auditor is Fred Dixon.

NANAIMO—Victorian Order of Nurses has chosen Nanaimo as the place for a pilot project when its new home-maker service begins in April.

The service is designed to keep the routine going when families are going through difficult periods.

CAMPBELL RIVER—W. J. Logie, district superintendent of schools, will be guest speaker at the Chamber of Commerce meeting in Willows Hotel today.

Fisheries committee chairman Stan Palmer will give information on the local fishing industry and resolutions committee chairman W. W. Balke will seek approval of motions for the Island Chambers meeting in Parksville March 16 and 17.

UCLUELET—Magistrate J. F. Webb has sentenced David Williams, an Opitzian Indian, to 60 days in Oakalla prison farm for trespassing in Tofino business establishments at night.

Solar Orbit Next

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP)—The United States plans next week to launch the world's first orbiting solar observatory to probe mysteries of the sun and how its rays affect the earth. The satellite, nicknamed Oso, may provide man with his first undistorted study of the sun.

340 MILES

The aim is to send Oso whirling in an orbit 350 miles above the earth. At that altitude the instruments aboard will make solar studies unobscured by the blanketing veil of the earth's atmosphere.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported the 440-pound satellite is the first of several such observatories scientists plan to send aloft for at least the next 11 years.

OSO PROCESSION

The space agency said a procession of Oso satellites could help answer such questions as how the sun controls the upper atmosphere, the origin and history of the solar system and the structure and evolution of the stars and galaxies.

PAUL HELLYER
... laughing-stock

A-Arms Policy 'Joke'

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has become the "laughing stock of the world" because of government indecision on nuclear warheads for its weapon systems, Liberal defence critic Paul Hellyer said in the Commons Wednesday.

He said it is becoming increasingly urgent that a decision be reached soon "one way or another."

FRUSTRATING

The indecision on nuclear weapons was "extremely frustrating" and "altogether impracticable" to Canada's allies. "We are spending a lot of money for weapon systems which are operational now except for the fact that they are unarmed and we are continuing to spend hundreds of millions of dollars for further weapon systems which are in the same category," he said during the Throne Speech debate.

ATTITUDE ATTACKED

Pressed for his view, Mr. Hellyer said: "I think a decision should be made one way or another." He did not say which decision he favored.

Mr. Hellyer also attacked the government for taking a "negative attitude" on Britain's negotiations for membership in the European Common Market.

'LEE' TACTICS

Mr. Hellyer said that Finance Minister Fleming had accused the Liberals of using the "big lie" tactic and misrepresenting the Canadian position put forward at the Commonwealth conference in Ghana last September, where Britain's move toward the Common Market was discussed.

'UNANIMOUS'

Yet Mr. Fleming himself, after the Commonwealth conference, had emphasized to British journalists that Commonwealth countries had been unanimous in their condemnation of the British move.

Space Talks Hoped

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told Soviet Premier Khrushchev Wednesday night he hopes U.S. and Soviet representatives can meet "at a very early date" to discuss practical co-operation in the field of space.

In a brief, cordial reply to Khrushchev's earlier message congratulating the United States on orbiting a man in space, Kennedy said the United States will come up with "new and concrete proposals for immediate projects of common action."

POOL RESOURCES

Khrushchev had suggested that the two countries pool resources to explore outer space in order to benefit mankind. At his press conference a few hours before the U.S. reply was made public, Kennedy called Khrushchev's proposal, one resembling a program Kennedy himself had advocated previously, an encouraging sign.

GRIT ATTACK MAKES PREMIER HOP

Facts Not Fantasy Demanded in House

By ALEC MERRIMAN

If noise, interruptions and rudeness meant anything, Soereds in the legislature yesterday didn't want to hear Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane's analysis of the government's debt position.

ALAN MACFARLANE
... enjoyed himself

Mr. Macfarlane had members jumping up and down in their seats, with Premier Bennett leading the show. Continually the premier rose to Mr. Macfarlane's bait, protested, attempted to turn the direction of the speech, and at one time even tried to claim the floor to make a speech himself.

At another point Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz threatened to name (suspend) Mr. Macfarlane for his refusal to unconditionally withdraw charges of "half truths."

Mr. Macfarlane, who with his colleague Gordon Gibson (L.—North Vancouver), shares the distinction of being the most able to rankle the premier, charged that Mines Minister Kiernan and Education Minister Peterson had told half truths about the B.C. debt picture.

Premier Bennett jumped to his feet. "Mr. Speaker, He cannot accuse another member of making half truths," the premier objected.

'Greatest Respect'

The Speaker asked Mr. Macfarlane to withdraw.

"Only on order of this House," said the Oak Bay Liberal.

"Disrespect of this House," said Mr. Macfarlane.

"I might as well be muzzled," snorted Mr. Macfarlane. "Sit down. You are causing the trouble," shouted Tony Gargrave (NDP—CCF—Macmillan) to the premier.

"The member has come so close to being named," cautioned Mr. Speaker Shantz to Macfarlane.

"I have the greatest respect for you and your duty. No disrespect is meant to you or your position," Mr. Macfarlane said to the speaker.

"He is wassailing," called out the red-faced premier.

"He called the member a wassail. He must withdraw," shouted Mr. Gargrave.

Premier Accused

When the premier claimed the right to speak Mr. Macfarlane told him he had more than one Oak Bay constituent to speak for and that the premier could have his turn next week.

He accused the premier of running a "government by clique . . . government by a favored few who share the premier's confidence . . . Most of the members of the cabinet don't even get in that clique."

"That is a complete falsehood. Every member of the cabinet knows it," said the premier jumping to his feet to the chorus of desk thumping from his benches and some cabinet members.

Liabilities Soar

He said the debt (contingent liabilities) had risen from $28,000,000 in 1954 to $1,208,000,000 in 1961, some $771 a head.

"And they will be higher next year," said the premier jumping to his feet.

"Let the people of British Columbia remember that remark," said Mr. Macfarlane.

Premier Bennett accused the Liberal MLA of "making a personal attack on the premier."

Mr. Macfarlane warned that "before we make any more expenditures of a major nature, like the $200,000,000 for Peace River, we must face the facts of the liabilities we already have."

"You just want to tear down," muttered the premier. He warned the premier that the party bonds are "call money . . . And you'd better hope large holders of those bonds don't call them in all at once."

"They have confidence," replied the premier with a smile. "We say to you, stop burning bonds and face reality. The people want the facts. Not fantasy. They want factman-ship not showmanship."

Mr. Macfarlane caused a storm when he demanded that the premier tell where he has a market for Peace River power.

"Were you ever up to the Peace River to see for yourself?" asked the premier.

"Is there a market? . . . Is there a market? . . . Is there a market?" demanded Mr. Macfarlane with his fist clenched.

The only answer he got from the premier was: "He hasn't even been up there . . . He hasn't even been up there."

"We plead with you to give the facts," Mr. Macfarlane told the premier.

"You couldn't understand them," replied Premier Bennett.

"The whole Columbia controversy is a disgrace . . . a pathetic performance by both governments involved. We are fast becoming the laughing stock of the whole western world in relation to this fiasco," Mr. Macfarlane charged.

'You Son of a Gun' Bennett Taunted

By PETER BRUTON

Legislative proceedings were shattered yesterday when unemployed workers shouted down to Premier Bennett to "come outside and meet us—you son of a gun."

Premier Bennett ignored the challenge and continued to read a copy of the B.C. Government News.

The disturbances climaxed the march of 300 unemployed, waving placards and chanting "We want jobs," on the legislative buildings.

Cost of the demonstration was $4,600.

Katanga

UN Unit Poised For Clash

ELISABETHVILLE (AP)—Troops of the Katanga provincial army were reported Wednesday to have advanced within 12 miles of Albertville, and the United Nations garrison there was standing by at battle stations.

The Katanga gendarmes have thrust toward the North Katanga capital from Kongoilo which they captured from mutinous Congolese troops Saturday.

The advancing Katangans are believed to be about 1,500 strong. According to radio messages received in this provincial capital they are poised ready to move into Albertville.

Bonner Angry

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, his voice shaking with anger, also announced he was prepared to introduce a motion that "strangers are present"—a move that would automatically lead to the clearing of all galleries.

But the government obviously did not want to be placed in a position of having forcibly removed the demonstrators.

A large number of uniformed and plainclothes RCMP patrolled the buildings while the demonstrators milled about.

The disturbances finally stopped around 3 p.m. when the unemployed were forced to leave to catch the ferry back to Vancouver.

Ten busloads of demonstrators came from the mainland and a two-block-long parade moved into Albertville.

Jobless Protest

Shouting, singing, banner-waving throng of 300 B.C. unemployed descended on legislature yesterday to present a brief, back to government speaker in the House, taunt Premier W. A. G. Bennett, stir the wrath of Attorney-General Robert Bonner and spark from Speaker Hugh Shantz a threat to clear the public galleries.—(Robin Clarke photo.)

Tony Gets 'Scoop'

LONDON (AP)—A squawk solo session with his camera at a Covent Garden rehearsal before other photographers were allowed in.

The pictures he took there were published in The Sunday Times this week. They showed Margaret Fonteyn and Rudolph Nureyev rehearsing for Wednesday night's performance of Giselle.

Says The Mirror: "If the facts are what they seem—and if they are not The Mirror will be happy to publish a correction—there is a curious new dagger in this country."

The Mirror editorial recalls that the newspaper didn't join in complaints from other sections of the press when Snowden started his job with The Sunday Times.

"Good luck to the young man," it says. "Good luck—but no privileges."

Brigade Would Get Warheads in Hour

OTTAWA (CP)—Nuclear warheads can be supplied in emergency to the Canadian Infantry Brigade group in West Germany in little more than an hour, competent sources disclosed Wednesday.

And in event of Russian nuclear attack they could be used by the brigade whether or not any agreement between Canada and the United States for their control were in existence, other reliable sources said.

The same situation will apply in the RCAF air division overseas when it is equipped with the new CF-104 low-level jet bomber. The first CF-104 squadron is scheduled to leave for Europe in November.

The 6,500-man motorized brigade group in Europe includes a battery—four launchers—of Honest John artillery rockets. The American Honest John was developed to carry a nuclear warhead.

DEFENSE BUILT

Defense Minister Harkness has informed the Commons that nuclear storage dumps are being built as part of a NATO program in Western Europe. Some of these dumps are handy to Canadian Army and Air Force bases in West Germany.

WORLD SUPPLY

Sources said that if nuclear war broke out in Europe, NATO would supply all forms under its command capable of firing nuclear weapons with the required nuclear warheads. Any other course in an emergency would be unthinkable, they said.
